

East German Calls Berlin 'Powderkeg' Hope to Be With Lloyd Long Time: Macmillan

Commons Cheers Word Denying News Report

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Harold Macmillan told the House of Commons today he hopes to be working together with Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd "for a very long time." Members of the House cheered.

Macmillan's statement came after laborite Emanuel Shinwell asked if the Prime Minister could say who was responsible for "inspired statements that the foreign secretary is to be replaced."

No Inspired Statements Drive Is Started On Racketeers Using Labor Laws

NEW YORK (AP)—Jay Kramer, chairman of the State Labor Relations Board, has started a concerted drive to prevent racketeers and gangsters from using state labor laws as protection for corrupt unions.

Kramer sent invitations to federal and county prosecutors in the New York metropolitan area and State Atty. Gen. Louis J. Lefkowitz to attend a meeting here June 10 to map strategy.

Letters of invitation went out Monday night to New York City's five county district attorneys, the district attorneys of the suburban counties of Nassau, Suffolk and Westchester, and the U. S. attorneys for the Southern and Eastern districts of New York.

Kramer called on the officials to join the State Labor Relations Board in a war on the corrupt unions.

Kramer seeks to close the loopholes that have made it possible for racketeers to gain official certification as bargaining agents and thereby resist challenges by legitimate unions.

AFL-CIO officials in New York City have complained that loopholes in both the Taft-Hartley Act and the state Labor Relations Law have enabled self-chartered organizations headed by underworld figures to pose as unions and enjoy union rights and privileges.

Kramer hopes that with the help of the law-enforcement agencies he can find ways to keep these phony groups from getting places on labor board ballots in representation elections.

He also seeks to bar such groups from using his board's facilities to obtain labor practice citations against employers who refuse to bargain with them.

A number of racketeers have relied on certifications from the national and state labor boards to demonstrate that their unions were government-recognized. The board rules provide that a certified union cannot be thrown out during the life of a contract.

Kramer hopes that at the meeting with the law-enforcement officers, machinery can be set up for exchange of information on racket infiltration of labor groups.

Stresses Atomic War
In Defense Request

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress was advised today it cannot afford to forget the possibility of a big atomic war.

lan answered. "But this does give me an opportunity of saying I have been reading newspapers, no doubt as Mr. Shinwell has, and the foreign secretary and I hope to carry on our work together for a very long time."

Macmillan's reference was to a series of reports in London newspapers in the past few days to the effect that Lloyd might be moved to another job.

Started in Press
The London Times created the major stir Monday when it reported that Macmillan had notified Lloyd he would be replaced sometime in the future.

Cable Assures Aide
The angry prime minister fired off a cable to Lloyd at the Geneva Big Four conference assuring him there was no foundation for the report in the usually authoritative London Times.

Macmillan acted swiftly to counter any idea the sensational report might have raised that Britain's spokesman at the Geneva talks did not have the government's full confidence. The Times report suggested a new man and a new policy might be needed at the Foreign Office after the summit conference expected in the summer.

The British government also was understood to have assured the Western allies that the 54-year-old Lloyd would be speaking for Britain for some considerable time to come.

Report Puzzles Officials
Along with their anger, government officials were considerably puzzled. It was believed the respected London Times would not have carried such a story unless it got the information from an apparently reliable source.

An official of the Times said the paper couldn't reveal its source but still felt the report was true.

The Times dutifully reported Macmillan's cable to the foreign secretary and reported its story had caused the "most intense interest" at the Geneva conference.

The indictment will be opened and the defendant arraigned at 10:30 a. m. Friday, it was later disclosed.

No announcement as to the persons or persons named in the indictment will be made public until the time of arraignment.

Farmer After Cows Finds Plane That Crashed With 3

CHARLESTON, S. C. (AP)—A farmer looking for stray cows found the wreckage Monday of a light plane that carried three persons to death a week ago.

The farmer, L. V. Cordray, found the wreckage in a swampy area about 15 miles west of here.

The bodies of Floyd Carlson, 28, his wife, Mae, 24, and Sandy Scarantino, 46, all of Jamestown, N. Y., were in the wrecked plane. Authorities said they apparently were killed instantly.

The plane, rented in Jamestown, had been missing since May 25. The three were en route from Jamestown to Orlando, Fla.

The craft fell about 100 yards from a woodland road, and landed in a cluster of young cypress trees. The plane was in about a foot of water. There was some gasoline in the tank, but there had been no fire.

The Civil Aeronautics Administration began an investigation to determine the cause of the accident.

No flight plan had been filed, according to the Federal Aviation Agency.

The plane was last reported on a fuel stop at the Raleigh-Durham, N. C., airport.

Rev. Wilder Resigns His Pastorates

The Rev. Garnet M. Wilder has announced his resignation as pastor of the Woodstock Methodist Parish Churches effective Tuesday, June 30.

Although the Rev. Mr. Wilder's announcement was not made until the Sunday, May 31 services, it had been reported for some time that he would resign.

The Rev. Mr. Wilder, a militant spokesman on civic and community matters during his four-year stay in Woodstock, is returning to the North Georgia Conference of which he is a member. He has been on leave from that conference the past four years for the purpose of graduate study in the Ph. D. program at Drew University.

Wallace Company Considers Store In Kingston Area

Joseph Kenney, manager of the Wallace Company store on Main Street, Poughkeepsie, today confirmed a report that Kenney has been under consideration as the site for a new Wallace Company store.

Kenney said nothing definite has been decided as yet, but he said Kingston has been considered for a new department store for the last year and one half. Wallace's is recognized as one of the leading department stores in the Hudson Valley.

Kenney said he couldn't say when a definite decision would be made about the new store in this city.

Ike Won't Withdraw Selection Firm on Strauss

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower today told Republican congressional leaders he has no intention of withdrawing the nomination of Lewis L. Strauss to be secretary of commerce—even if Strauss should request it.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois reported that Eisenhower also said Strauss will not ask that his name be withdrawn.

Means Showdown
Dirksen talked with newsmen after the party chiefs' regular weekly meeting with Eisenhower. The President's position means a showdown fight in the Senate over the Strauss nomination.

Strauss has been under heavy fire, mainly from Democrats. However, Dirksen predicted flatly that Strauss will be confirmed.

In the growing controversy over Strauss' confirmation, which comes up for Senate debate later this week, a New York railroad financier has withdrawn from consideration as head of a government transportation study.

The name of the financier, Armand G. Erpf, entered the Strauss case last week, when it was reported that Strauss had named him to head a study of national transportation policy.

Hit Ties With Rails
Some Senate Democrats, taking up the report, implied that Erpf's close financial ties with railroads would predispose him to favor them.

Erpf was quoted as saying he could not take on the job formally until Strauss is confirmed by the Senate as commerce secretary, which he now holds under a recess appointment.

The Commerce Department then said Erpf was only one of several transportation specialists being considered.

Monday Erpf radioed Strauss from a Europe-bound ocean liner that his usefulness for such a study "is being impaired and hence please withdraw my name from consideration."

Won't Block Name Either Rocky Denies He Has Plans for N. H. Vote

CORNING, N. Y. (AP)—Gov. Rockefeller says he has "no intention" of actively competing as a presidential candidate in the New Hampshire primary.

But he also says he doesn't plan to take any action to block the entry of his name in the primary, the nation's first in 1960.

On Upstate Swing
He expressed these views Monday at a news conference here during his first swing through Upstate New York since taking office Jan. 1.

A group of congressmen led by Rep. Stuyvesant Wainwright, Nassau County Republican, announced recently they would enter the governor's name in the primary.

At the news conference, Rockefeller lightly parried questions about his possible candidacy and avoided firm commitments.

Would refuse the presidential nomination if it were offered to him, a reporter asked.

"I don't cross bridges that I can't even see before I get to them," he replied.

When a reporter suggested that the only active step needed to keep his name out of the New Hampshire primary would be to "I don't cross bridges that I can't even see before I get to them," he replied.

Justice of the Peace William P. Curran, (D.), who reported the purchase of the plow at previous meetings was heartily in accord and remarked to Markle "It's the plow you want, the price is right, I have no objection."

Able, Space Monkey, Dies Under Knife

WASHINGTON (AP)—Able, one of the two monkeys which rode a missile 300 mile into space, died Monday night while undergoing an operation for removal of a recording instrument. The Army said death did not result from any effect of the flight itself.

The seven-pound Rhesus monkey, a passenger in the nose cone of a Jupiter rocket on a 1,500-mile space run Thursday, died at the Army Medical Research Laboratory, Ft. Knox, Ky.

Electrode Under Skin
The Army said an electrode used in recording the monkey's physical condition during the flight had been implanted just under the skin.

It was decided that the electrode should be removed.

The Army said "there was no indication that the animal would not be able to withstand such a minor operation."

During administration of an anesthetic, it was noticed that the monkey suddenly developed a rapid and convulsive heart action. Attempts were made at artificial respiration, but the monkey died at 10:45 p. m. EST.

Not Related to Flight
"The cause of death was rapid and convulsive movement of the heart, following the administration of the light surgical anesthesia, and was unrelated to its recent flight," the Army said.

Able's body is being sent to the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology here for study.

The other monkey passenger on the historic flight was Baker, a one-pound squirrel monkey.

One Injured as Cars Crash on W. O'Reilly

One person was injured and two others escaped unhurt as the result of a two-car collision which occurred at 11:15 a. m. today on West O'Reilly Street near the railroad overpass.

Patrolman Frank Stip listed the operators of the cars as Thomas Goodman, 71, of 75 Montrose Avenue, and Mrs. Etta Singer, 63, of 71 North Front Street, wife of the late Police Commissioner William Singer.

Albert Bowers, 44, of 23 Lawrence Street, a passenger in the Goodman car, received head injuries. He was taken to Benedictine Hospital for treatment.

Police Sergeant William Hanley said Goodman was driving west on West O'Reilly Street, and Mrs. Singer was operating her car in an easterly direction when the vehicles collided. Both vehicles were damaged on the left front.

Gas Tanker Truck Explosion Kills Nine; Flames Sweep Highway Like Ball of Fire

SCHUYLKILL, HAVEN, Pa. (AP)—A gasoline tanker truck exploded on a main highway in eastern Pennsylvania today killing nine onlookers some 300 feet away.

"The tanker exploded and flames swept up the road like a ball of fire killing people gathered around a police car," reported Sgt. Melvin Clouser.

Attack Scores West Powers on Espionage

GENEVA (AP)—A Communist East German spokesman declared in the Big Four conference today that West Berlin is "a powderkeg which can ignite a world atomic conflagration."

In a slashing attack on alleged cold war activities of the Western powers in the divided city, East German Foreign Minister Lothar

Bolz said dozens of subversive and espionage organizations operate in West Berlin against the whole Soviet bloc.

Hits Reds on Talks
Ambassador Wilhelm Grewe of West Germany, also addressing the conference at the Palace of Nations, accused the Communists of carrying on "mud-slinging, slanderous agitation and propaganda" since the beginning of the Geneva talks three weeks ago.

The bitter debate raised new doubts about the possibility of an agreement lifting the Soviet threat to West Berlin. The Western Allies say unless they get such an agreement, they won't join Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev in a summit conference.

Asks Full Conference
Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko requested a full-scale conference session today, reportedly to let Foreign Minister Lothar Bolz of Communist East Germany speak on the Berlin situation.

Bolz was expected to echo the Soviet Union's demand that the Western powers abandon West Berlin to neutralized rule.

It was assumed he also would argue that this would ease East-West tensions by ending Western use of the city to wage subversion, espionage and propaganda warfare against Communist East Germany.

Gromyko already has denounced West Berlin as a hotbed of intrigue.

Rejects Gromyko Demand
Herter counterattacked with charges of Communist subversion, espionage and propaganda based in East Berlin. He also rejected Gromyko's demand that the United States muzzle its powerful RIAS, the radio in the American sector, which beams German-language programs to the Communist East.

Herter, British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd and French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville planned to continue this campaign, tailoring it to whatever line Bolz took. Later, officials said, the Western ministers might mount a full-scale attack on the Red use of East Berlin.

The Western ministers are determined that any agreement made to curtail international dirty work in Berlin must apply to the Communist as well as to the Western sector of the city.

The secret talks which began last Thursday apparently were getting the ministers no closer to a solution of the Berlin problem than the semi-public sessions earlier.

Asst. U. S. Secretary of State Andrew H. Berding told a news conference "very little progress has been made in the private talks toward a solution of the problems before the conference."

Wedding Scene Shifted
BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)—The wedding of Prince Albert and Italian Princess Paola Ruffo di Calabria, will be held in Brussels instead of Rome as originally planned, the government announced today.

The princess was scheduled to be married to King Baudouin's brother by Pope John XXIII at St. Peter's Basilica July 1.

The decision is a reversal of what was known as the position of the royal family and the king, who returned only Monday from a tour of the United States. Socialists opposed the move to hold the Roman Catholic ceremony outside this country. They are in opposition to Belgium's Social Christian-Liberal government.

Gas Tanker Truck Explosion Kills Nine; Flames Sweep Highway Like Ball of Fire

SCHUYLKILL, HAVEN, Pa. (AP)—A gasoline tanker truck exploded on a main highway in eastern Pennsylvania today killing nine onlookers some 300 feet away.

"Heads, legs and bodies are scattered everywhere. I saw six bodies lying in one field alongside the highway,"

Ney said he was told that a tractor trailer and a propane gas truck had collided on Route 122, known locally as the Pottsville-Philadelphia pike. State police, however, said there was no collision.

The explosion occurred on route 122, a highway known as the Reading-Hamburg road, three miles below Orwigsburg in eastern Pennsylvania.

Vincent Ney, chief photographer for the Pottsville Republican, telephoned his paper from the scene.

He said it was impossible to determine the number of dead and injured.

"We sent a trooper who set himself up about 300 feet away to divert traffic from the scene. Two fire companies arrived to fight the flames."

"A number of people left their cars to see what the holdup was. They gathered around our trooper handling the traffic. About 8:45 a. m. the tanker let loose. There was a terrific explosion."

"The flames swept up the road like a ball of fire killing eight or nine around the trooper. He was saved by ducking behind the police car."

"As far as we know there was no collision. We don't know what caused the fire. Sometimes these tankers catch fire for some unexplainable reason."

There was no immediate identification of the victims.

Health for All

Falls Get Harder With Time

Maybe this column should be titled "Falls get easier with time." Taking a fall can hurt anybody of any age, and the suggestions below apply to every one of us. But especially older people. Somehow Grandma finds it difficult to accept the fact that she can't move as quickly as she used to, can't see hazards as well, and does not lift her feet—to avoid tripping—as readily.

For old people, falling is much easier and they land harder. If someone elderly suffers a fall in your home—and in one town recently 4 out of 10 of the older people had taken a tumble—the results are often serious. Sometimes it means a wheelchair existence from then on.

But most important, it's so unnecessary. With a little care, foresight, and training most falls by older people (and anyone else!) can be avoided.

Stairways are the big hazards, of course. To combat them, Grandma should follow three rules: Take your time. Put both feet on each step. Use a grab-rail.

Good lighting is often neglected around stairways, especially back porches. Older people don't see as clearly as they once did, so the top and bottom steps should be spotlighted for them.

Bedrooms, believe it or not, are dangerous for older people. They may get out of bed too quickly, get dizzy and tumble. Or rugs, lamp cords, shoes on the floor, and other objects may be a hazard. Getting up at night without a light is perilous; older people should have a bedside flashlight for use outside the bedroom in addition to a night light in the room.

It's true of anyone, but older people especially should not take steps backwards on a possibly uneven surface. They should not climb on chairs. They should use bathroom grab-bars. They should walk with rubber-tipped canes on icy days.

This column is sponsored in the interest of better health by the Ulster County TB and Health Association, 124 Green Street, Kingston.

The company, in announcing the transaction Monday, did not disclose the price.

St. Lawrence Corp. is a leading Canadian paper and paperboard manufacturer, with headquarters in Montreal.

The West Virginia Company, which has a plant here, owned 189,864 shares of common stock in H&D, or 52.74 per cent of the stock outstanding.

Scotia Depot Won't Be Needed by OCDM

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Scotia, N. Y., Naval Supply Depot will not be used by the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization for stockpiling excess machine tools.

Rep. Samuel S. Stratton (D-NY) reported Monday that he had been informed by OCDM that fewer sites than originally planned are needed for the stockpiling program and Scotia has been "removed from current consideration."

Stratton also said the Air Force had advised him it has "no interest in facilities at the Scotia Depot for any current or foreseeable use."

Stratton recently outlined a four-point program to ease the impact of the closing of the Scotia installation. Use of the depot by other armed services and for stockpiling machine tools were two phases of his program.

It also included lifting the personnel ceiling at nearby military bases to absorb layoffs at Scotia and a crash program by the Civil Service Commission to find other work for employees dropped at Scotia.

Stratton said the Civil Service Commission has promised a report on all programs under way to place Scotia employees in other jobs but he has received no word from the Defense Department on lifting personnel ceilings.

Today's Business Mirror

By SAM DAWSON

AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—A bang-up June is looked for in many of the nation's basic industries. And confidence is growing today that it will be a prosperous summer for business.

Neither the fear of a steel strike nor the awareness that some industries take a seasonal breather soon seem to put a brake on rising confidence that recovery has turned into a fledgling boom that will grow at a faster rate than thought earlier.

This chant is loudest in Wall Street where stock prices hit new highs every few days. But take a swing out into the center of the nation and you get the same word.

The businessman in Springfield, Mo., for instance, will tell you, "Everything's better now, everything's growing." His confere in the West is likely to be singing the same song.

Wall Street's optimism is catching. Rising stock prices make people feel prosperous, even if they don't own stocks. If they do, they can fondle their paper profits in their dreams, or cash in and buy something.

But business executives as well as shareholders are talking more optimistically of getting through the summer without the slump they earlier feared.

Steel buying has been at record highs. Part of this was aimed at building up stocks to live on if there is a strike, or to live on for awhile if there isn't a strike but a price rise following a wage hike.

But some steel users haven't been building up their stocks as much as they planned, because they expected in current production. Steelmen feel that if there's no strike they'll still have lots of customers.

The auto industry has been piling up new cars in dealers' hands. But each month this year sales have risen. Auto makers say dealers won't be stuck with unsold cars when it's time for shutdowns for new model turn-overs.

Business confidence is leading industry slowly to widen its plans for spending — chiefly for new equipment but also for some new plants.

And the general better feeling seems to be behind the growing volume of retail sales. That and the steadily climbing total of personal incomes.

The Federal Reserve Board's policy of tightening up the money supply hasn't had noticeable effect as yet.

Businessmen are borrowing more. Consumers are taking on more instalment debt. Home builders talk confidently of finding enough mortgage money to keep residential construction going along at its recently stepped up pace.

June is just busting out all over with optimism.

Apple Order Due

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—Agriculture Commissioner Don J. Wickham soon will issue a state marketing order for apples.

The Agriculture Department said Monday that slightly more than 75 per cent of the apple growers in the state who participated in a referendum May 28 favored establishing the order.

For a marketing order to become effective, at least two-thirds of the producers who vote in the referendum must approve.

In the May 28 referendum, 589 of 783 growers who voted cast affirmative votes.

Under terms of the order, the apple crop may be assessed up to three cents a bushel. The money will be used to promote the sale of apples.

Seeks FCC Approval

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Communications Commission received an application Monday from Radio Station WTKO at Ithaca, N.Y., for transfer of control to Ellis E. Erdman and Associates.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

COMMENTS ON AN INTERVIEW

This deals with a report signed—G.G.—Reprinted from "The Moscow News" (Oct. 22, 1958) and appearing in "The Worker," published in New York. It purports to be an interview with William Saroyan. Some of the statements attributed to Saroyan are of interest because Saroyan is a successful and well-known author and playwright in this country.

The interview starts with this obiter dictum: "These people (the Russians) don't make haste running after imaginary business, they don't gape before shop windows, they don't stand around chatting—expecting some nod of Fortune. . . ."

Precisely what does Saroyan mean by "imaginary business"? Where there is production, somebody does business; somebody must produce and distribute goods and services; somebody must look after exchange. Whether he is a government official like Anastas Mikoyan or a private enterpriser like Ben Fairless, the process of production and distribution and exchange is basically the same. It is business whether the bookkeeping is done the American or the Russian way.

What Saroyan is attempting to do is to idealize the Russian habit of taking long walks. In this country, folks might take a ride in an automobile. Saroyan was apparently in the large cities in Russia where people promenade, as they do on the boardwalk at Atlantic City. In his own California, youth might drive 100 miles for some flirtation or to "make out," as the kids call it today. These biologic processes are the same everywhere.

So Saroyan says: "They are very sure of themselves, proud of their city, polite and available for a talk. They know they have attained something and are more willing than any other old nations to share their achievements and their knowledge with other peoples."

This, of course, is strictly untrue. Actually, Soviet Russia has shared nothing with anybody. Actually, whereas most nations participating in the International Geographical Year have made and are making what they find available to all the world, and whereas signals from space satellites or other devices have been on stated megacycles, the Russians have thus far not provided similar information and have been extraordinarily secretive. Saroyan displays in this statement, if he made it, an extraordinary ignorance of what he has done and of what they have done. Perhaps an imaginative writer does not regard it as necessary to report accurately, but the record is quite complete.

When Saroyan enters the field of metaphysics, he says something that deserves discussion: "I really saw good-humored people, people worshipping one faith—faith in themselves, faith in man. To be a man sounds proudly—these words of Gorky seem to me to be the most quoted in the Soviet country."

In a word, he said that they worshipped "one faith" themselves. There was no worship of God; only the worship of man. There were no differences of view, no quarrel between Platonist and Aristotelian, no difference between Arian and Athanasius, no Jews, no Christians, no Moslems, no Buddhists—only Marxists. By what process is so large a portion of the human race coerced into such conformity?

Surely, so liberal a person as William Saroyan would be critical of the Spanish Inquisition, of Italian Fascism, of German Nazism. He would object to any political mechanism which managed by whatever means to have people "worshipping one faith." Would he not say that the Roman Catholic Church in Spain is bigoted for seeking to keep Spain in "one faith"? But in Soviet Russia that is all right. Why is it an achievement in Soviet Russia for all men to think in a rigid conformity and it is very bad here in the United States?

Saroyan's interview is characteristic of many Americans who, having gone to Russia and who, finding something that in the United States is an everyday experience, sing paeans to the wonders of the dictatorship. For instance, Saroyan is surprised that he saw the collected works of Dickens, Chekov and Tolstoy in New York for the collection of works of Dickens and Chekov and most of Tolstoy. I did not need to go to Russia to get such books. And he found that there was a great market for the works of George Bernard Shaw, H. G. Wells and Mark Twain. And why should there not be such a market? These are interesting and amusing writers although Wells is a bit dated. (Copyright, 1959, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Washington News

BY PETER EDSON

NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — While the United States has been concentrating on winning the cold war in Europe, the cold wars in Latin America have not been going well.

Latin Americans like to blame the United States for this, which is the easy way out. But an equal share of the responsibility lies with the Latin Americans themselves. For they have not been using the tools which they have at hand for winning their own cold wars.

Good Latin-American liberals and democratic leaders like ex-President Jose Figueres, of Costa Rica, who has been visiting in Washington, will admit this frankly.

He admits, for instance, that the ruling classes in Latin America for several generations have been too far removed from the poor of their own countries.

ALL GOVERNMENTS IN LATIN AMERICA have their own problems of social and economic reform. They include such things as distribution of land to their poor and the collection of adequate income taxes from their rich.

It has been said that in comparison with the Latin-American business interests, U. S. business is positively communistic. Yet the entrenched and often hereditary business interests of Latin America consider themselves the ally of U. S. business interests.

This plays right into the hands of Communists who play on the poverty and the misery of the Latin-American masses as exploited by "Yanquis."

The rich in Latin America are primarily the supporters of the oligarchies and the dictators of their countries. In the last 10 years democratic-minded Latin-Americans have been trying to overthrow their corrupt governments. Wherever that happens there are revolts.

BUT THE U. S. TAKES a position of recognizing and supporting only established governments. The official position in Washington is to lean over backward to avoid giving any appearance of interfering in the internal affairs of neighboring republics.

The United States has adopted this policy after learning its lessons the hard way. Too often in the past where the U. S. did interfere, it got slapped down. But in today's changed world, this policy may now lead the United States to make other mistakes.

Sincere and honest democratic reformers have been considered trouble makers. U. S. arms have been used to keep them under control. The excuse for furnishing these arms has been to keep the European Communist governments from furnishing them.

But liberal leaders now say, in effect, to the United States, "Don't furnish the dictators with arms to shoot you down with. When you do, you lose a cold war battle to the Communists. They tag you every time with supporting the wrong side."

U. S. BUSINESS, WHICH NECESSARILY makes deals with existing governments and Latin-American business interests, gets carried along in this propaganda stream.

Even American tourists sometimes add to this bad impression. They stay at the luxury hotels. They visit the American embassy. They meet only the well-to-do Latinos. They have a large barrier. They never get close enough to the people to understand what is going on.

There are some labor, cultural and agricultural attaches and some consular officials who break through this barrier. But they are considered the exception.

The U. S. labor union movement is considered more successful in understanding the situation in Latin America. But it has not been too successful in getting the U. S. labor union system adopted there.

Communist organizers often are more effective.

All this is most distressing to Latin-American progressives who, like President Figueres, admire democracy and recognize that the only way their countries can be strengthened is through closer bonds with the United States and Europe.

Strauss Controversy Said To Make Europe Wonder

By DAVID LAWRENCE

LONDON—The spectacle which the United States Senate is making of itself nowadays is causing a good deal of comment in Europe. It is incredible to most Europeans that a President is evidently not allowed to select his own cabinet officers without getting the consent of the opposition political party.

Newspaper accounts telling how the Senate Foreign Relations Committee has undertaken to pass on the qualifications of ambassadors tend to re-enforce also the criticisms which have long been made of the American form of government as lacking a sense of responsibility because it permits divided authority.

It was more than 100 years ago that Lord Macaulay wrote his famous treatise on the American constitutional system and said it was "all sail and no anchor." Even allowing for the differences between European and American concepts, the fact remains that the prestige of the United States suffers when such picayune matters as the Senate Foreign Relations Committee has been dealing with lately in passing on ambassadorial appointments are reported in the press of Europe.

Strauss Row Stirs Comment

There is more than a passing interest, moreover, in the case of Lewis Strauss, whose appointment as Secretary of Commerce has stirred up such a controversy in the United States Senate. Over here, where they heard tales of "witch-hunting" and "persecution" under the era of so-called "McCarthyism," newspaper men on European papers are asking what is back of the apparent vendetta launched against Mr. Strauss. In Europe they know him as the man who helped to prevent Communists from getting atomic secrets; and as an official who has had the most cordial relations with Western governments on atomic matters. It is asked whether the pendulum has swung the other way and if the anti-Communists now are the ones being persecuted.

When some of the newsmen who inquire about the issues involved in the Strauss case are told that much of the opposition comes from Senators who favor government ownership of electric power projects and that the present Secretary of Commerce has been opposed to their views, the question then raised is whether the Democratic party is America's Socialist party and whether this is going to be the issue in the 1960 campaign.

Oppenheimer Case Revived

There is a revival naturally of the discussion about the celebrated case of J. Robert Oppenheimer, noted scientist, who was denied "security clearance" while Mr. Strauss was chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission. But it was an impartial board which revealed that Dr. Oppenheimer had contacts with Communists while he was at the head of a secret laboratory project of the United States government and that, when intelligence officers questioned him about these contacts, he misled them for a long while and then, three years afterwards, confessed that he had lied to the American intelligence officers. It was, in the final analysis, matters involving discretion which led to his being barred rather than any question about his loyalty. But to the European it looks like Mr. Strauss is about to be punished by the adverse votes of many Democratic Senators for the performance of his duty as a public official.

The case has come to be talked about abroad as one that is not likely to end if the Strauss nomination is rejected. For, despite the statements of various Senators who say they are giving objective consideration to it, the fact remains that rarely ever is a cabinet officer rejected by the Senate and almost never has there been an instance where he was rejected ostensibly for his views on public policy.

Responsibility for Conduct

The controversy establishes an interesting precedent in that it helps to support the case for some form of parliamentary government of which America with a way to fix directly on one or the other of the major political parties the responsibility for the conduct of both the executive and legislative branches of the government at the same time.

The handling of the Strauss appointment is equivalent to an "impeachment" of the Secretary of Commerce, who took the oath of office seven months ago and has been performing the duties of his office satisfactorily ever since. But the adverse vote of Senators now means that these Senators would remove him from office not for what he has done at his post but for views he held prior to entering the Cabinet.

Says Approach Is Unfair

This is an obviously unfair approach. Conceivably it could, in time of war, take away from the commander-in-chief the power to promote a worthy military officer to a higher command post. It certainly is a means of frustrating executive operations by interfering with the right of a President to select his own advisers and aids.

It's small wonder that so many Europeans who study the abuses permitted under our constitutional system think that America hasn't quite reserved (Reproduction Rights Reserved)

HOUSING FOR THE AGED

It has become a truism that a steadily rising percentage of our population falls into the over-65 age group. As this trend continues, more and more attention will have to be devoted to the needs of this population segment. And one of the most pressing needs is better housing for the aged.

At present, many elderly persons live in places not at all suited to their special requirements. Though this has always been true to some extent, the growing number of those past retirement age gives the matter greater importance.

Some communities already have created special housing projects for the elderly. The National Association of Housing and Redevelopment Officials reports that wherever such projects have gone up there has been a rush of applicants. This indicates the depth of the need.

The fact is that older persons require housing that not only incorporates special safety features, but that is within easy reach of shopping, entertainment and medical facilities. There are other particular needs. Studies of this have been made, both here and abroad, but much more ought to be known. In the meantime, housing designed on the basis of what is already known about the special needs of the elderly should be built as rapidly as possible.

DESTROYING THE DOLLAR

"The fiscal situation deteriorated faster during the past year than in any comparable peace-time period to my knowledge."

That grim statement came from one of the top Congressional authorities on government finance and taxation—Senator Byrd of Virginia.

The Senator summed up what has been going on, and it would be hard to find a darker picture. Deficit financing has been the rule rather than the exception for more than a quarter of a century. In January of this year the federal debt hit an all-time high, exceeding the World War II peak by more than $6 billion. We have reached a point of serious reluctance to invest in the bonds of the U. S. government. Chronic inflation has reduced the purchasing power of our money by 52% since 1939.

So much for the statistics. Their significance is found in something else said by Senator Byrd: "Our free enterprise democracy is the greatest system the world has ever evolved. But there is one controlling requirement, and this must never be overlooked. The system is based on solvent government and sound money."

When debt, deficits and inflation reach a certain point, one thing inevitably happens. Government becomes a dictatorship. The printing presses are turned loose, and the currency is ultimately debased, as in post World War I Germany, to worthlessness. And the liberties of the people, like their savings, are destroyed.

PLEASANT HOMECOMING

There is a small light burning in Henry Smith's bathroom. It has been on day and night for a couple of weeks now. Unless it burns out, the bulb will glow there each night for another week.

The steadily burning light does not indicate that anything is wrong at the Smiths. It is a symbol of the precautions they took to make their homecoming as pleasant as their vacation.

A darkened house is an invitation to burglars. So is an unmowed lawn. So is an accumulation of mail or newspapers or milk. The Smiths had all this in mind when they left on their vacation. They arranged to have a friendly neighbor pick up their daily newspaper and mail; they had milk deliveries stopped until further notice. They paid a dependable boy to keep their grass short.

None of this is a guarantee against thieves. But is the best kind of deterrent. The Smiths have done all they could to give

Year In, Year Out Use of Insulin Is Severe Ordeal

BY EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.

Written for NEA Service

A question recently received puts the problem of treatment for diabetes in a nutshell. The writer says: "I am a diabetic. When can I put the needle aside and just stick to my diet? What is the cause of losing weight? Knowing I am a diabetic, I am very nervous. It's an awful ordeal. I feel like calling it quits and live and eat like a normal person. What would happen to me—infection again?"

This correspondent can put the needle aside and stick to diet alone just as soon as her doctor finds out that the insulin is not necessary and sugar can be prevented from appearing in the urine by diet alone.

If she stops insulin before the disease can be controlled by diet alone, serious risks are involved. Loss of weight in diabetes is one of its symptoms of lack of control of the disease. A person who is losing weight will usually be found to have sugar in the urine as well.

One can certainly sympathize with the desire to call the whole thing quits and eat like a normal person. But this, too, would be highly dangerous. The writer had an infection before, and would be likely to get it again, unless the disease is kept under control.

The question of treatment for diabetes boils down to this: Mild cases can often be controlled with diet alone. But in order to do this, the patient must stick by the diet and not cheat.

If diet alone does not prevent the symptoms of sugar in the urine or relieve the symptoms of the disease, insulin injections have to be considered. It takes a little time for the physician to determine the exact amount of insulin necessary, and the patient is responsible for seeing that he or she takes exactly the right dose at exactly the right time.

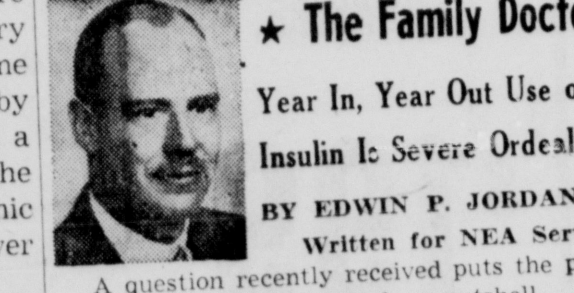

Both diet and amount of insulin vary from person to person, depending upon the severity of the disease. It is absolutely impossible for patients to calculate these needs for themselves. If they try to treat their own disease, they are running grave risks.

About the only exception to this rule is that properly instructed patients can often learn to test their own urine to make sure that the disease is remaining under control between visits to the doctor.

A word should be said also about the new oral preparations aimed at the control of diabetes. These chemical products (not insulin) are being extensively studied and used and are suitable for some victims of diabetes.

They should never be taken, however, except under the advice and direction of a physician.

themselves peace of mind on their vacation trip. Their example is worth following.

Talent May Be Pooled

NEW YORK, (AP)—A major talent combination is deliberating Broadway production of "Mother Courage," Bertolt Brecht's satire on war. Those involved are Siobhan McKenna, the Irish star; Roger L. Stevens, one of Broadway's busiest impresarios; and off-Broadway's trio of Jose Quintero, Leigh Connel and Theodore Mann who operate the Circle in the Square Theater. The intent is to have Quintero direct and Marc Blitzstein arrange the musical score that was written by Paul Dessau. Blitzstein did similar service for the Kurt Weill opera "Three Penny Opera," which has been running here four years.

My Lovin' Mary-Nan

By FRANK TRIPP

The Mary-Nan II is 30 years old this year. She's a boat; a family cruiser that is serving a fourth generation. She has been loved and pampered almost as much as our children, who grew up with her.

She has outlived countless craft that have come to rugged Seneca in her day; come and gone, some to Davy Jones' locker, because they were "only boats" to those who owned them — and abused them. Seeing this happen so often almost roused me into promoting a national society of present skippers, the SPCK Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Boats.

A skipper worthy to own a good boat is as fond of it, and as kind to it, as to his dog. He honors it, that its days may be long, its service dependable, its task happy, its old age serene.

These good things have happened to the Mary-Nan II. Now Bob reads her for an hour or two of her pleasure; her grin provokes pointing to movie days and weeks of relaxation and joy for those who already owe her so much. She's Bob's boat now.

SOME FOLKS buy boats only because they have the dough and it's fashionable, makes land lubbers envy them. These never become true skippers or worthy devotees of a challenging and rewarding diversion. They discredit the vast majority who really love their boats.

It could be that the Mary-Nan got her earliest affection because she was my last "foolish" investment before the financial crash of 1929, when the country's worst depression settled upon us. I sailed her home in June. By November I needed the cash she cost (and it wasn't hay), much more than she was my pride. Little cause she was my pride. Little left of her was built by Matthews, save her sturdy hull, the basic reason that any boat survives.

The most dear inanimate thing ever to come into my life is only an outdated boat that has given so much joy to so many loved ones. Five generations, for too, my mother enjoyed her too. (Copyright, 1959, General Features Corp.)

Do You Remember by Sophie Miller

June 6 is going to be a big day in Kingston. It is Old Home Week celebration. The Kate Walton Field House will have an exhibition of some several dozen exhibits. They will have open house from 9 in the morning until 9 in the evening. Kingstonians who are visiting will be able to sign in to let others know they are here. Also I understand that everyone who has in his possession group pictures of years gone by will be asked to display them so that folks can see them. I have seen a number of them and they are all exciting especially if you recognize some you know.

Nick Matthews of 65 East Strand who runs "Poor Man's Paradise" had a picture tied to the front of his truck. I guess he was having a celebration for Mr. Pinchot's 81st birthday as being the oldest barber in these parts. The picture was of the Rondout Maennerchor group. It was a Pennington picture dated in 1918. Back in 1912 I think they used to meet at the Maennerchor

Hall at 46 East Strand. Those who belonged at that time may be interested to see this picture. I recognized Lawyer David Weil who ran a yard goods place for many years. I noticed in 1912 he lived at 25 Spring Street and was a Prudential Insurance agent at the time. Joseph Block, of Block's Department Store, corner Hasbrouck and Strand was there. Max Hazen who had a shoe store for many years downtown and had owned some of the best buildings in Rondout, was there also.

Hazen's son, is Joe Hazen, who is prominent in the movie industry working with Hal Wallis in some of the well known productions. Joe Hazen no doubt is remembered by many as he grew up downtown and made good as a lawyer in one of the most exciting industries, movies. Every once in a while his name appears in the national columns. Max Hazen, his father owned the Hazen Block building, 36 to 40 Broadway, which housed stores and a number of busy factories. He lived at I think 24

Abeel Street which he owned, the building set back with a nice lawn and a wall, a Chateau type of structure with high ceilings so it was cool in the hottest weather and it was shaded by many trees.

Jack Greenwald saw the picture too and he says he used to belong to that group. He says he recognized Jacob Merkle, a painter living at that time at 601 Delaware Avenue. He also was sure one of the men was Carl Will, Jr. (assistant bookkeeper of the State of New York National Bank who lived at 70 Hunter Street.) He also felt that John L. O'Shea was in the picture. I see there is a man by that name who had a cafe and restaurant 35 North Front Street. In O'Shea's advertisement it states plainly "for men only." Another one Mr. Greenwald knew as "Remus, the carpenter." I find in the 1911 Kingston Directory three carpenters, all with the name of Remus. Augustus P. of 70 Ravine Street was a ship carpenter. Edward H. of 17 New Street, also listed as carpenter. John F. is carpenter and builder of 29 Brewster Street.

Think It Through

THE CHANGING TIDES

"The United States is now living the last years of its greatness."

We are prone to downgrade a statement because we don't like the author. But a Poor Richard said, "Love your enemies for they tell you your faults."

MR. HUTTON

The man who said it is Khrushchev. That in itself is of some importance because if he believes it, he may wait for the United States to collapse from within, without war.

There is a lot of bounce left in this country. I think I see a silent revolt hardening against our soft and sloppy attitudes: living beyond our means; pampering of criminals and labor goons; getting fat, demanding more money for less work; something for nothing; and all the things that point toward "the last years of our greatness."

One never knows when the political pendulum begins to change course. Prohibition was written into the Constitution. It looked as hard as a steel ball. But opinion changed as the tides change, and the steel ball became an eggshell.

We twice broke the unwritten law against a third term but in a few years decided it was a good law and nailed it into the Constitution.

But political tides change only because we change—you and I, and the milkman and millions more.

Maybe Khrushchev's statement will help wake us up.

The old American gods of Character, Work, and Self-respect may return.

Physician Is Fined $10,000 as Tax Evader
BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—A Hammondsport physician has been fined $10,000 and placed on two years' probation for evading federal income taxes.

Dr. John R. Kuhl, 59, who had pleaded guilty to evading payment of $10,786.25, received a suspended two-year prison sentence Monday.

Federal District Judge Harold P. Burke gave him until June 29 to pay the fine.

Dr. Kuhl had pleaded guilty to reporting income of $20,510.54 with a tax of $3,795.21 in 1955 when his income was actually $44,777.06 with a due tax of $14,581.46.

Judge Burke said at the sen-

Night of Terror Over for Town; Slayer in Jail

LACONA, Iowa (AP)—A dazed old soldier climbed out of a ditch and crawled into a deputy sheriff's car late Monday night. "Gettin' kinda chilly, ain't it?" he remarked to special deputy Russ Smith of Des Moines.

Thus ended a night of terror for the 430 residents of this south-central Iowa town.

Slew Own Daughter
The man was Ray Hardman, 68, who was held in the county jail today in connection with the shooting killing of his daughter, Grace Hardman, 25, and the wounding of a neighbor boy, Don Neer, 12.

Smith and state highway patrolman Jack Gorman were among more than 25 peace officers who converged upon the town Monday night.

Gorman got out of the car to check a grain elevator about 11:45 p. m. That's when Hardman crawled out of the ditch, and the manhunt was over.

"Nobody went to bed until Hardman was caught," said patrolman Richard Hendrickson.

"Everyone was scared to shreds," the town's telephone operator said.

Sheriff C. J. Richards of Indianola ordered her to ring every home in town and warn residents to stay inside and keep their doors locked.

Gives No Motives
Hardman gave no motive for the shootings," Richards said.

"He's in a disturbed mental state," Richards added. "He's always kind of dazed. Seven years ago he tried to kill his son Clyde after an argument."

Hardman escaped from the Iowa Soldiers Home in Marshalltown Monday afternoon. He had been there since last August, although he went on a brief furlough in November.

The body of Hardman's daughter was found in the backyard of the Hardman home. She was shot in the back.

Mrs. Hardman was away baby sitting, authorities said.

Hardman apparently then went to the Glen Neer home nearby, authorities said. He walked into the house and shot the boy.

The youth hospitalized in Charleston, was reported in serious condition.

Talks Resume For Steel Pact

NEW YORK (AP)—Contract negotiations in the basic steel industry resume here today, with the deadline for reaching agreement four weeks away.

Talks between four-man teams representing the 12 largest steel companies and the United Steelworkers of America have been in recess for a week.

The three-year contract covering 500,000 union members expires June 30. If no new contract is agreed on by that time, there almost certainly will be a strike in plants that produce 90 per cent of the nation's steel.

Negotiations have been held on and off since May 5.

The union is seeking substantial pay increases, reduction of the 40-hour work week and other benefits. Current basic wages average $3.03 an hour.

The companies are seeking a one-year freeze on wages and other benefits as an anti-inflation move.

Cleveland Mops Up After Flood

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Greater Cleveland's South Side mopped up today after flash floods that caused damage estimated to run into millions of dollars.

Torrential rains turned many streets into muddy lakes and rivers at the start of Monday afternoon's rush hour. The storm lasted about an hour and in that time one suburb, University Heights, recorded 3.9 inches of rain.

Dozens of marooned motorists and occupants of two flooded buses were rescued. The buses were almost completely submerged in Cleveland's University Circle area, where some of the heaviest flooding occurred.

Thirty-three persons were treated for exposure.

Thousands of basements were flooded, storm sewers were torn away, and sidewalks washed away.

Mayor Anthony J. Celebrezze of Cleveland said damage to city property alone might exceed a million dollars.

University Heights estimated loss in that southeast suburb at $300,000; and Shaker Heights Mayor Wilson G. Stapleton estimated $100,000 damage in that fashionable residential suburb.

In the next 44 years Rohmer turned out a long series of Fu Manchu stories. The last, "Re-enter Fu Manchu," appeared in 1957.

township have enjoyed phenomenal growth. His brilliant sermons have attracted widespread attention in the area and his intensive campaign against a proposed Woodstock township bingo ordinance was largely responsible for defeat of the measure by a resounding margin.

Two hundred and sixty-six members have been received into the fellowship of the Woodstock Methodist Parish churches during the past four years. One hundred and seventy-two of those persons were received into the Woodstock church, representing a gross increase of 187 per cent.

Budget Increases
The budget of the Woodstock church has increased 500 per cent during this time. Approximately $10,000 has been spent for repairs on the Woodstock church. Growth and expenditures in the other churches have also increased considerably and in some cases the budgets have been doubled. However, the large influx of people into the Woodstock area has not so greatly affected the outlying churches, and their growth has come from a relatively static population.

The officials of the four churches of the parish have authorized a study commission to investigate the possibilities involved in consolidating the churches and building a new church plant in the Bearsville area.

The Rev. Mr. Wilder is a native of Georgia. A graduate of Reinhardt College and the University of Georgia, he attended Candler School of Theology at Emory University at Atlanta where he received the Bachelor of Divinity degree cum laude in 1954.

Shokan

SHOKAN—Robert Bloom, a native of the old village of Shokan, called on his old boyhood friend, Clyde Winchell, last Tuesday. Mrs. Bloom was spending the day at West Point where she was attending a DAR memorial service given at the Hotel Thayer by the officers of the club of the New York Chapter of the Daughters. The couple, formerly of Newburgh now make their home at Waverly.

Bloom, a World War 1 veteran, told of the marriage, May 15, in Paris, France, of his daughter, Janet, to David Harrington of New York City. Mrs. Harrington, who was formerly in government service, had recently completed a tour of several weeks through Russia.

Nettie VanBuren, west Olive resident whose funeral was held Sunday, May 24, had a number of friends on this side of the reservoir. She was brought up in the Brodhead sector of the town.

Mrs. M. Shineberg of Chichester and New York was here last week. She reports all her rose bushes killed by frost last winter and considerable flood damage done to the grounds of her summerplace during the Spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Ruckert have been spending several days with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Zanis, and granddaughter, Anna, in suburban Reading, Pa.

Birthdays falling June 3 include that of Robert Adsit, old state road businessman. A KHS alumnus, Bob is a former Boy Scout leader and prominent in Olive firemanic circles.

The M. Wardlow family vacated one of the L. F. Ruckert apartments in the village center last week. Wardlow, an IBM employee, was transferred to Oregon, and their household effects were taken to Moose Lake by two trailer truck moving vans.

Mrs. George Phillips, 82, Kingston woman who died May 22, was a native of this section. A daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Cudney, her early farm home here was the present Beloit place along the Ashokan Mountain Road.

Hundreds Attend Memorial Day Rites at Hurley

The 91st Memorial Day was solemnly observed in Old Hurley Saturday morning, with hundreds viewing the parade of wars and attending services at the Old Hurley Cemetery.

With Justin Bell as marshal, the parade stepped off to the spirited martial music of the Kingston Elementary School Band under the leadership of Donald M. Slater. Colorful Indian, Dutch and American costumes of history and military dress of recent world conflicts were representative of the wars in which Hurley citizens sacrificed their lives. Leading the line of marchers were the Spirit of

'76, Betsy Ross, and Abraham Lincoln.

Largest in History

The march to the graves of Hurley's war heroes included the parade of community organizations who swelled the ranks to make this the largest parade in Hurley's Memorial Day history.

Under the welcome shade of birches and maples and amidst the weather-worn grave stones of the old burying ground the memorial service was fittingly observed with the traditional prayer offered by Mrs. L. C. Dixon, 82 year old chaplain of the Hurley Grange. Mrs. Ethel Palmer, Grange youth director, placed the symbolic wreath upon a grave in memory of the dead. Larry Brown sounded taps.

The Hurley Festival Chorus accompanied by Mrs. Marcia Slater on a 19th century organ and under the direction of Mrs. Carolyn Waligurski, sang the solemn hymn, Old One Hundred and the civil war favorite, The Battle Hymn of the Republic. Anthony Ventriglia was the soloist.

General Sherman V. Hasbrouck, U. S. Army, retired, delivered an address recalling the wars which have forged our country. General Hasbrouck outlined some of the great battles of those wars and then brought to mind some of our great soldiers and their hours of trial. From this background, he spoke of the devotion and sacrifice for country made by the early citizens of Hurley and in particular one who staked everything he had on the Revolutionary cause because he believed so strongly in freedom. General Hasbrouck concluded that our nation is only strong in proportion to the devotion and sacrifice of her present citizens.

The service closed with Benediction by the Rev. Harold Schadewald, minister of Hurley Reformed Church.

In conjunction with the Hurley Festival, the Hurley Grange, under its master, Walter Stauble and its committee chairmen, Mrs. Lucy McCabe and Justin Bell, arranged the program.

Mental Patient Is Charged With Slaying Mother

HOBART, Okla. (AP)—A two-state manhunt for Clark Brillhart ended abruptly Monday with his capture by a state highway patrolman. He was returned here charged with the crowbar bludgeoning of his mother.

The stocky, sullen mental patient was sighted near El Reno, Okla., and arrested by highway patrolman Lt. R. E. Frusher. Brillhart said he was en route here to give himself up. He had been sought in Oklahoma and Texas.

'Had to Be Done'

He is to be arraigned today on a murder charge in connection with his mother's death. A murder charge in the fatal beating of his father may also be lodged against Brillhart.

Brillhart, 24, en route to the jail here Monday night, said "Maybe it was wrong, but it had to be done."

Earlier he told police and newsmen at El Reno, "It was a terrible thing to do. I don't know why I did it."

The powerfully built young man, with a drooping right eye and a day's growth of beard, answered questions quietly. He posed for pictures, but showed no emotion over the deaths Sunday night of his parents, Elmer, 26, and Florence, 45.

Stuns Community

The fatal beating of the locally prominent Brillharts stunned this southwest Oklahoma farming center of 6,000. One man told a reporter, "he always seemed like a smart kid, and a quiet boy."

The Brillharts were prosperous dairy farmers near here. Mrs. Brillhart was a founder and active leader of the Oklahoma Assn. for Mental Health as well as author of two religious books.

The young man told officers, "They always had me under their thumbs. My folks always gave me things but no freedom. I never got a fair trial when I was at Fort Supply."

He was committed to Western State Hospital at Fort Supply, Okla., in January but released from the mental institution on convalescent leave two days before the fatal beatings.

Boy Struck by Car

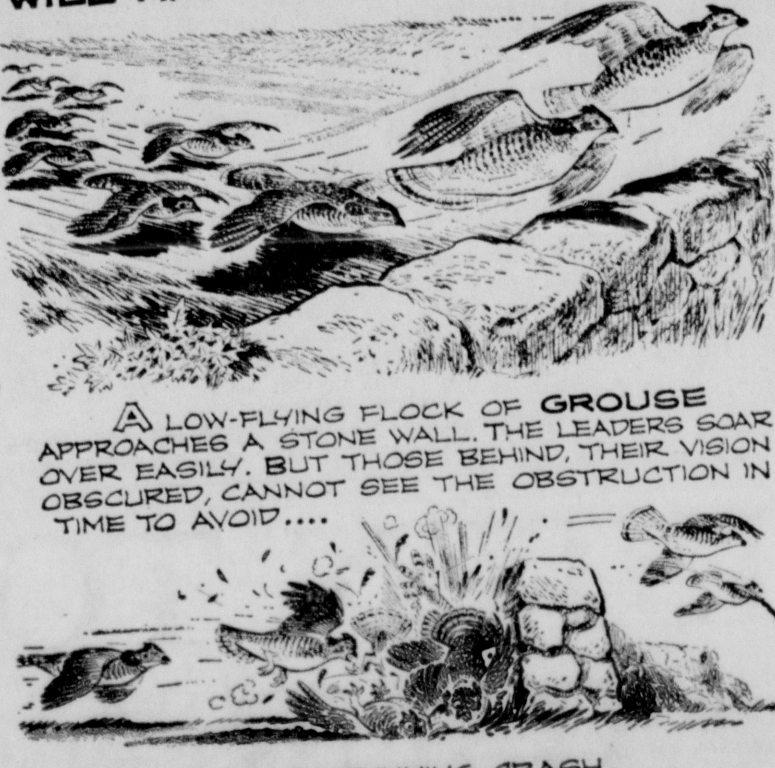

Stephan Foster, 8, of 481 Wilbur Avenue, was injured Monday when he was hit by an automobile at Henry and Pine Streets, according to police. Robert E. Lane, 50, of 174 Linderman Avenue, told police he was driving on Henry Street when his car hit the boy's bicycle. Lane took him home and later took him to Kingston Hospital for treatment and x-ray examination.

Called for Brush Fire

During a steady downpour of rain shortly before noon today, firemen were dispatched to Miller's Lane to extinguish a brisk brush fire.

Three Men Perish As Jet Bomber Crashes on Coast

HEMET, Calif. (AP)—Three Air Force men were killed early today when a jet bomber crashed, scattering wreckage and flaming fuel across open ranchland near Hemet.

A fourth crewman wandered from the wreck, dazed and burned, into the arms of a motorist attracted by the flames.

The survivor told a sheriff's deputy, "I don't know what happened. We were on our (landing) approach and everything seemed all right."

He couldn't say how he got out of the plane, but investigators said he was apparently thrown clear. His hands and face were badly burned. He was reported in fair condition at a Hemet hospital.

Names of all four crewmen were withheld by the Air Force pending notification of next of kin.

The plane touched off five fires in rolling ranchlands. Hemet is 80 miles east of Los Angeles.

The plane was from March Air Force Base at nearby Riverside.

COTTEKILL—Mr. and Mrs. Henry Cooper spent the holiday weekend in Bronx with their daughter, Mrs. Smith and family, where they celebrated their 41st wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Sherman Wilson entertained over the weekend, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rask and daughter Patricia of Bridgeport, Conn., and James Creigh of Elmhurst, L. I.

James Pine, the oldest resident of this village, celebrated his 96th birthday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Oscar Beach. Mrs. Marshall McCabe, his oldest daughter, is spending some time here.

Mrs. Herman Miller and her scout troop participated in the Memorial Day parade as did the Cottakill Volunteer Firemen.

The Ladies Aid Society will hold its regular monthly meeting at the church hall, Thursday. This will be an all day meeting as they plan to house-clean the church and the hall.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market took a fairly sharp dip in relatively quiet trading early this afternoon.

Key ticks declined from fractions to more than a point on a broad front. Some electronics and other high-flying issues fell as much as 3 points or more. Wall Streeters saw nothing in the news to prompt the decline.

Missing Girl Found

CAMDEN, N. Y. (AP)—Six-year-old Patricia Graham, missing for two rainy days and nights, was found unharmed today in woods two miles from her home.

The first concern of the blonde, blue-eyed girl was her shoes. When she disappeared into the dense brush and swampland Sunday morning, she was seeking a lost shoelace. When her father and eight other searchers found her, she had no shoes.

"She was going to show me where she left them," her father, Ernest Graham Jr., told a reporter. "But we didn't bother to look for them. We took her right to the hospital in Rome."

"The doctors say she's in a No. 1 shape. She's in better shape than I am."

Bachelor Is Aisle

LONDON (AP)—A 35-year-old bachelor was named press secretary to Princess Margaret and tary to Princess Elizabeth today but he won't be a new face around Clarence House.

The appointment went to Maj. John Griffin, a former equerry to the queen mother.

Until now press relations for all of the royal family have been handled by the Buckingham Palace press secretariat.

Woman, Child Hurt As Auto Hits Tree

Two persons were injured shortly after 8:40 a. m. today when a 1955 sedan in which they were riding went out of control and hit a tree on Hasbrouck Avenue at Foxhall Avenue, according to police.

Joan Howard, 33, of 15 Stanley Street, told police she was driving south on Hasbrouck Avenue and attempting to make a left turn into Foxhall Avenue, when the car went out of control and hit the tree.

The driver was treated at Kingston Hospital for lacerations of the face. A passenger in the car, Mary Pronger, 4 1/2, of Port Ewen, was taken to Kingston Hospital and admitted. Police said the child suffered internal injuries.

The front of the vehicle was completely damaged and it was towed from the scene of the accident.

House Cat Worse Than a Coyote, Game Man Feels

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP)—When the word predator is used in connection with wildlife management, people usually think of killers such as the mountain lion, bob cat and the coyote.

Conservation men think one of our commonest domestic pets is the worst killer of them all.

That is the ordinary house cat. "In my opinion," says a state conservation director, "the domestic house cat which has taken to the woods does more harm to birds and small game animals than all the other predators put together."

Persian, Siamese and pretty angora cats become hunters and killers by night and wreak havoc among the birds and animals, especially at this time of year.

The problem is especially acute in rural areas, where cats roam fields and orchards until dawn. Pheasants, quail, nesting doves, rabbits, and a host of other wildlife forms suffer from house cats.

Rosendale, Tillson News Strawberry Fete Slated June 19 By Library Group

The annual Rosendale Library strawberry festival is scheduled Friday, June 19, on the library grounds, Main Street. Serving will be from 5:30 p. m. until all are served.

Plans for the event were outlined at a meeting of the association Thursday. Tickets are available from the committee, Mrs. Anna Mae Auchmoody, Mrs. Edward Huben, Mrs. Arthur Mulligan, Mrs. E. K. Ingram and George W. Mollenhauer. Teenagers will assist with the serving.

At the meeting it was announced that James Fahey had donated a desk to the library. It was repainted to match the furniture in use at present.

The need for a typewriter was emphasized and anyone wishing to donate one may contact Mrs. Auchmoody.

Mrs. Mulligan and Mrs. Huben, co-chairmen of the book committee of the board of trustees, reported that they had attended the workshop in Ellenville and had received 175 books on loan. At the workshop they also received information about receiving books. The state is allocating $100 to the library for this purpose.

Mrs. Rudolf Geiselman of Rosendale and Mr. and Mrs. Gus McCorkle sent books to be used in the library.

A communication was received from Miss I. Marie Gustafsen praising the dedication.

Henry Mollenhauer reported that he had contacted the Extension Service in regard to taking a sample of the soil around the library only to be told that group was too busy. Plans for taking care of the grounds will be continued in the fall.

Mrs. Gene Van Winkle, chairman of the library fair, requested and received approval to hold the fair Saturday, August 15.

On a report on the road oil situation Town Superintendent Markle quoted an itemized account of expenditures showing that it cost the town $111.20 plus the loss of availability when needed, between the time of the actual order for the oil and delivery, to effect a saving of 68 cents, the difference between the state contract price and oil available locally with immediate delivery.

The subject was discussed at length and a taxpayer present at the meeting suggested that the contract could be terminated by mutual consent.

The matter of road oil was tabled for future consideration by the supervisor and town board.

FLIRTING WITH TROUBLE

Rotation of strength keeps the stock market buoyant. One day the chemicals are strong; next day the rails and the third day the motors. And, as stocks move higher and higher, the public becomes more confident.

Today, in such an atmosphere, thousands of inexperienced investors are developing interest. And, as I have been saying recently in this column, stock prices are being pushed up with professionals enticing amateurs.

As I write this, DuPont, Chrysler, Ford, General Motors, United States Steel, Bethlehem and Youngstown Sheet and Tube are all over the tape and prices are advancing spectacularly.

With America's marvelous system of communication, this will mean that tomorrow morning there will be a flood of buying orders for leading stocks.

For the unwary, this should be a time of caution. Based on earnings and dividends, scores of blue-chip common stocks are expensive. Taking large profits and paying capital gains taxes is one thing, but buying at present high prices is another.

I am concerned with those scores of new investors who lately have asked for a $5,000 to $10,000 common stock program. I should like to suggest that they buy other securities that today are unpopular.

For example, an assortment of $6,000 Pennsylvania Railroad 4 1/2 percent bonds, New York Central five percent obligations and Northern Pacific three percent bonds can be bought for $4,200. They would pay $245 a year with a yield of almost six percent.

In the utility field there are dozens of bond bargains. Two thousand dollars face value of American Telephone and Telegraph 2 1/2 percent bonds, $2,000 of Detroit Edison 3 1/2 percent consolidated obligations can be purchased for about $4,800 with annual income of nearly four percent currently. On the average they are selling for 80 cents on the dollar.

As I write this, 23 issues of United States Treasury bonds are selling to yield to maturity from 4.03 percent to 4.42 percent. The government 2 1/2 percent bonds due on Feb. 1, 1965, can be bought for about 90 cents on the dollar, affording a yield to maturity of 4.42 percent.

Industrial bonds also are going begging. Two thousand dollars each of United States Steel 4 1/2 percent bonds, Texas Corporation 3 1/2 percent bonds and Shell Oil 2 1/2 percent bonds can be bought for $5,300 with a yield to maturity of more than 4 percent.

These bonds have ready markets and at commercial banks they are splendid collateral for loans.

This article is in the nature of an open letter to more than a hundred readers of this column who have recently asked for sound investment suggestions.

Today's warning can't be repeated too often by countless inexperienced investors becoming interested in securities; stock prices are very high; bond prices are low. Why flirt with trouble?

The Forum

To all bond buyers: The bonds mentioned in this article are well known in brokerage and banking circles. In most cities in America they can be bought and sold at such institutions. If any reader can't get dependable service, he may write me enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Harry C. France will answer one letter each week through this column. If you have any investment questions, write in care of this newspaper. (Copyright 1959, General Features Corp.)

Flexible Retirement Policy May Give Worker a Break

BY MARIE DAERR

"Don't let a short-sighted retirement policy waste the manpower abilities still available in our older people," urges Dwight S. Sargent, personnel director for Consolidated Edison Co. of New York. This partially explains the reason for that company's change in retirement policy.

Before 1953, Consolidated retired men at 65 and women at 60. For awhile, the company tried a flexible retirement policy. Today, men may retire at 65 or stay on the job until 68. Women have voluntary retirement at 60 and must retire at 65.

Sargent is convinced that many companies would change their retirement policies if they knew more about the actual desires of their employees approaching 65.

He also thinks that, in talking about retirement, two groups should be considered: first, the high executive group, and second, the rank and file group.

"It is possible that age 65 could be completely appropriate for a vice president and unnecessarily expensive and undesirable for a mechanic or clerk," he said. Sargent explained that one way of meeting the retirement age problem, the "flexible" policy, involves selecting each year those who are allowed to continue work.

"This is the ideal and probably unattainable policy from the point of view of using the maximum amount of the productive skill that exists," he said. "This selection isn't the easiest or most pleasant job."

"If it can be avoided by use of some plan, I think a great many managers would like to eliminate making some selection at age 65 of the competent versus the incompetent."

Two Bridge Men Finish CD Radiological Course

John B. Stillman, chairman of the New York State Bridge Authority, today congratulated two of the authority's key personnel on their successful completion of a course at the Civil Defense Radiological Monitoring School.

Aloysius H. Curran, of Hudson, assistant bridge manager of the Rip Van Winkle Bridge, and James Maguire, of Catskill, maintenance foreman of the same bridge, completed the one week course held in New York City on May 16.

The course is designed to train personnel in detection of radiological contamination and the means of preparing against the damages of nuclear weapons. The school is attended by personnel from all parts of the country and is part of the Civil Defense Preparedness program. Both Curran and Maguire are qualified instructors in radiological monitoring techniques.

Fewer Sampson Acres Needed for Park Purposes

WATKINS GLEN, N. Y. (AP)—

The Finger Lakes State Park Commission has cut down the number of acres requested for park purposes from the abandoned Sampson Air Force Base near Geneva.

Gov. Rockefeller says the decision would be acceptable to all concerned.

The commission voted Monday to ask the federal government for 1,030 acres instead of the 1,492 acres originally requested.

The reduced acreage would include all of the Seneca Lake waterfront at the old air base site.

A plot of 865 acres away from the lake shore would be left for possible business and residential use.

The new proposal was explained Monday to Gov. Rockefeller and Republican Rep. John Taber of Auburn. They were here for a luncheon of the Finger Lakes Assn., a regional chamber of commerce.

Rockefeller later told newsmen in Corning he thought the new request would be acceptable to all.

He said he favored using part of the old base for a park, but added he did not want this interpreted as meaning he definitely favored using part for industry.

Taber, who returned to Washington Monday night, said that the commission's decision "doesn't help the proposition very much, not as much as it should be helped. There isn't much change in the thing on that."

The commission has claimed that Taber was using his influence in Washington to block an acceptable plan for converting Sampson into a park.

Taber's answer has been that the commission's plans were not realistic and that the state does not have the money to pay for the land it wants.

Girl Scouts Hold Court of Awards

NEW PALTZ—Five New Paltz Girl Scouts received first class badges last Sunday at the Court of Awards. Also honored at the ceremony were five adults who received surprise appreciation certificates for their contribution to the Girl Scouts.

The first class scouts, members of the senior troop led by Mrs. Thomas Franklin, who were awarded the badges are Judith Babb, who specialized in homemaking; Nancy Diemer, house and safety; Mincey Rooney, homemaking; and Mary Lou White, nature. Patricia Koblitz, a member of Mrs. Randolph Siegel's intermediate troop, specialized in out-of-doors for her first class badge.

Mrs. Jerry Blair, field director of the Ulster County Girl Scouts, awarded the first class badges. Mrs. Blair praised the New Paltz neighborhood which has had such spectacular growth during the last year, by next fall, New Paltz will be the largest neighborhood in the county with the largest number of troops. Credit for this growth, Mrs. Blair said goes particularly to Mrs. David Lent, last year's chairman, and Mrs. Randolph Siegel, the present chairman.

Mrs. Siegel awarded the appreciation certificates to five women who have helped contribute to the successful scouting program this year. Recipients of the awards were Mrs. Charles Lang, for her work as chairman of the Girl Scout fund drive, Mrs. Richard Culver who was chairman of the cookie sale, Mrs. Richard Redfern for her publicity work, and Mrs. Henry Hornbeck Jr., and Mrs. Robert Lang who are retiring after four years as leaders.

Mrs. Siegel, assisted by Mrs. Richard Jones, intermediate troop consultant, awarded badges to the members of Mrs. William Cithbert's Troop 34, Troop 58 whose leaders are Mrs. Hoenbeck and Mrs. Lang; to Troop 35 which is Mrs. Siegel's and Mrs. Harold Brown's troop, and to Mrs. Franklin's Troop 38.

Mrs. Lent presented five-year pins to 19 girls who had completed five successive years as Brownies and Girl Scouts. Refreshments were served following the ceremony by a committee of mothers under the chairmanship of Mrs. H. Wade Burkhardt, assisted by Mrs. Rexford Schneider, and Mrs. Richard Redfern.

Other officers elected at the meeting were Alfred Schrieber, vice president and treasurer; Gilbert Clough, secretary, and James Ashton, director.

Boy, 16, Charged With Luring Girl, 3, From Home

MALONE, N. Y. (AP) — A 3-year-old girl, missing for nearly eight hours, was found in a field Monday night and a 16-year-old boy was charged with kidnapping.

Police said Larry F. Delosh, a seventh-grade pupil, admitted that he enticed Susan Sherwin from the yard of her home Monday morning by promising her candy. Approximately 400 policemen, firemen and volunteers joined in the search for the girl. A party of firemen found her, clad only in panties, shoes and stockings, in the field about 1½ miles from her home, on the opposite side of the village.

Police said she had bruises on her back and some minor scratches on her body but appeared unharmed otherwise.

The child, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Carl P. Sherwin Jr., was examined at a hospital by her father and two other physicians, then taken home.

Delosh, who lives a block from the Sherwin home, gave no reason for luring the child away. Susan's mother had reported the girl missing at 11 a. m. Mrs. Sherwin said she had last seen her daughter riding a tricycle in the yard of her home. The tricycle was left in the yard.

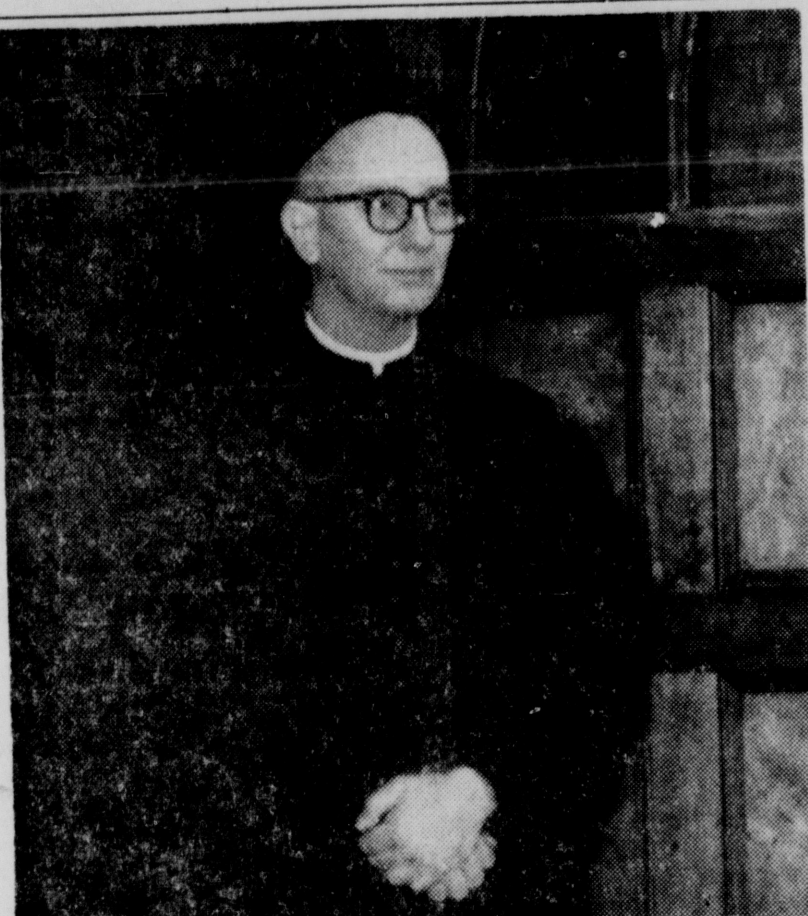

At first it was thought that she had wandered away from home. Later, however, a woman who lives in the area where the child was found, reported that she had seen a youth carrying the girl. Delosh waived examination when arraigned before Peace Justice John M. Boomhower and was committed to Franklin County Jail.

Striking Similarities

Long Brothers Had Much In Common Besides Power

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Those two Louisiana brothers, Gov. Earl K. Long and onetime Sen. Huey P. Long, had some things in common besides a thirst for power and the persuasiveness to get the people of the state to give it to them.

In a sense they were political primitives with passionate bursts of fury, unbelievable energy, roughness, toughness, profanity. They turned name-calling into a kind of art form.

Disturbed by Length

The front page stories of Gov. Long's violent and vituperative screaming and shouting for more than an hour in the state Legislature last week may have shocked those with no schooling in Louisiana politics.

But the people of the state, particularly those friends and critics who urged him to seek medical care after his performance, were probably more disturbed by the length of what he did than by the nature of it.

They were used to it, but not to this degree. This time Long outdid himself. He seemed to know it for he went to a psychiatric hospital and is under observation there now.

Would Be Quieter End

If this is the end of his career, it is quieter than his brother's. Huey was assassinated in 1935. These brothers could win elections overwhelmingly. But both had big blocs of enemies. Many people hated Huey. Those familiar with the inside of recent Louisiana politics say many hate Earl, too.

This writer, who worked in Louisiana 14 years, knew both brothers and, although I met them years apart, the first meeting with each showed some of the similarity between them. What they said was not meant for the ears of little children.

In 1927, one week after I had found a job on the New Orleans Item-Tribune and before Huey Long had become nationally famous, the city editor told me to run down to a hotel and ask Long what he was doing in town. I asked who he was.

Two Nasty Enemies

The city editor said: "Oh, he's just another one of those candidates for governor." What he didn't tell me was that Long and the Item-Tribune were nasty enemies. I went to the hotel, called Long on the house telephone. I told him I was a reporter from the Item-Tribune and wanted to see him.

He shouted into the phone: "A reporter from the Item-Tribune. I wouldn't talk to a reporter from that — newspaper if it was the last — newspaper in the world. That — newspaper is to newspaper work what the red light district is to the city."

Twelve years later, although I had seen Earl Long many times, I went to a downtown hotel to interview him for the first time.

Gov. Richard Leche, overwhelmed by the developing Louisiana scandals at the time and soon to be sent to the penitentiary for his part in them, had just resigned and Earl Long, lieutenant governor, had succeeded him and was going to run for a full term on his own in the 1940 elections.

I was then with The Associated Press, which took no sides in Louisiana politics. But I went to the hotel with a reporter from the Times-Picayune, which did, and which had been a foe of the Long machine for years. We knocked on Long's door.

Fantastic Endurance

He came out, glared at the Times-Picayune man, said: "Who are you? What do you want?" The reporter told him what paper he was from. Long let go at him and his newspaper in language which couldn't be printed but which made hilarious retelling when we got back to our offices. Yet this writer followed Gov. Long around Louisiana in the bitter winter of 1939-40, when he was campaigning for a full term, which he didn't get, and his energy and endurance were fantastic.

President Urges Congress to Act On Wheat Control

WASHINGTON (AP)—The door has been closed—but not locked—against a new federal control program for wheat.

Acting under farm law, Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson, issued a proclamation Monday ordering the 21-year-old program continued for next year's wheat crop.

President Eisenhower said continuation of the old law for another year "leads the wheat program one step closer to disaster." He again urged Congress to act.

Farmers will vote July 23 on the question of continuing marketing quotas. These would limit sales of wheat to that grown on 55 million acres that would be allotted growers. At least two-thirds of those voting must approve.

Department officials said it is not too late, however, to put a new program into operation for next year's wheat. They said it would be possible to change programs as late as July 1 should Congress pass one acceptable to the Eisenhower administration.

The administration as well as many farm leaders have called the present program a failure because it has not prevented accumulation of a record surplus.

Better Touring Shows

NEW YORK (AP)—A play-

producing unit to assure cities across the country of an increased supply of touring productions has been set up by the Theatre Guild—American Theatre Society and the Council of the Living Theatre.

The joint agency, which has mostly concentrated on arranging the travels of shows following Broadway runs, reports the purpose is to overcome the occasional scarcities that have hampered local managements in attempts to schedule theatrical seasons. Jerry Leider, who sponsored Sir John Gielgud's triumphant Shakespearean tour of the U. S. and Canada, has been named executive director of the unit, with Warren Caro as managing director.

around Earl. But Huey walked the earth surrounded by men whom his friends called bodyguards. His critics called them gunmen. They made a hobby of beating up newspapermen. Once they fractured an Associated Press photographer's skull with a blackjack.

In the end they weren't able to save Long from what he dreaded most: sudden death.

YOUR POCKETBOOK

While We Aren't Looking, Cost of Services Mount

BY FAYE HENLE

No matter what you think, you do exert considerable control over prices.

Friends of mine installed color TV antennas when they built homes several years ago. Yet these friends have no color TV today. Why? They simply aren't interested in the price tags on the available sets.

After several market studies the TV makers have discovered that while the majority of their customers would gladly pay up to 20 per cent more for color, they aren't willing to exceed this limit. Until the industry can make a color TV set to sell at a price their customers are willing to pay, they can't hope for a sales boom.

The same holds for electronic ovens. A couple of years ago we believed these would be standard equipment. Who wouldn't want an oven that could cut the cooking time of a roast to a mere 30 minutes? Yet, who'll spend around $1,000 for this privilege? Very few of us.

The automobile industry at last is catching on. They are working to produce smaller, less expensive cars.

As part of its fight against inflation, Washington has caught on that it is you rather than the manufacturer that dictates price. Under consideration are public hearings that would be held by the President's Council of Economic Advisers whenever a major price or wage increase loomed.

Though no one has told me so specifically, I think the intent here would be to signal everyone — workers, manufacturers and consumers — so that immediate action could be taken to halt proposed increases before they became reality and more of us got hurt than got helped. Already many different kinds of manufacturers are aware that you are the one deciding prices. The exact reverse is happening in some industries from what happened in the early post war years.

Then the big pitch in manufacturing was upgrading. You were tired of makeshift, shoddy merchandise. You had savings earmarked for specific purchases. As soon as these goods became available you bought. Not only were you eager to buy, but you willingly paid the price. Today this situation has altered. You are spending considerably more than twice as much as you did 10 years ago to keep your car, your TV sets and household appliances and furnishings in repair. Services are taking a bigger and bigger slice of your spending. You are spending less proportionately for clothing, more on your home and furnishings.

The cost of services is something you do not appear to be watching as closely as the cost of the products you buy. It might pay you to give this some thought.

In the long run, I think each one of us would profit if we checked prices carefully and made certain that we were getting the best possible value in terms of our requirements. I urge this as a countermove to the possibility of government-imposed controls on prices and wages.

Here is a specific instance where you can help in the fight against inflation.

Dr. Pyle is president of the John Burroughs Natural History Society which studies flora and fauna of the county. Garden walks are scheduled after lunch. Those interested should phone Home Demonstration Office, 220 Wall Street before June 9.

Bargain in Nutrients

June is the peak season for milk production. Supplies have been increasing all spring, and will continue at a high level until mid-summer, when production will decline. Producers and members of the trade have joined together to proclaim June as Dairy Month.

Milk is a rich source of nutrients, particularly calcium and riboflavin, say Extension Specialists. These two nutrients are likely to be low in the diets of Northeasterners, according to a survey by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Dairy products provide 75 per cent of all the calcium and nearly 50 per cent of all the riboflavin in food supply.

Dairy products are a comparatively inexpensive source of nutrients. They have advanced less in price than all foods in the past decade. In 1958 it took $1.20 of food as could be bought in 1947-1949 with $1 but in 1958 only $1.14 was needed to buy as much dairy product as could be purchased in 1947-1949 with $1.

While prices for dairy products have increased some over the years, they have gone up less than the wages of workers. In 1958 a worker in manufacturing industries could purchase 8 quarts of milk at average hourly wages, nearly twice the amount during 1935-1939.

Today's supermarket offers the shopper a wide variety of forms of milk. Selection may depend on many factors—price, nutritive value, flavor, use, and personal preference. There is little difference among the milks in the amount of protein, calcium, and riboflavin in each quart. Whole milk and modified skim milk are richest in vitamin A per quart. Skim milk, modified skim milk, buttermilk, and nonfat dry milk have about half the calories as the same amount of whole milk.

Reconstituted non-fat dry milk was less expensive than the fluid milks. Homogenized milk cost one cent more per quart than non-homogenized and skim milk was less expensive than whole milk.

Pasteurized milk. Milk that is pasteurized has been heated to destroy harmful bacteria and make it safe to drink. The nutrients in milk are not affected significantly.

Homogenized milk. Homogenization is a mechanical process of breaking the fat globules of pasteurized whole milk into smaller particles. The fat is uniformly distributed throughout the milk and does not rise to the top to form a layer of cream. The food value of the milk is unchanged.

Skim milk. Skim milk is milk from which most of the fat has been removed. Since vitamin A is soluble in fat, most of the vitamin A has also been removed. Other nutrients remain about the same as in whole milk.

Modified skim milk. Skim milk that has certain vitamins added is referred to as modified skim milk. Usually vitamins A and D and sometimes protein are added to skim milk.

Buttermilk. The product left after fat has been removed in buttermaking is natural buttermilk. Most of the buttermilk available in stores is cultured buttermilk, made by adding a selected bacteria culture to skim milk.

Nonfat dry milk. Skim milk with almost all the water removed is known as nonfat dry milk. When reconstituted, it is similar to fluid skim milk in food value.

At the Markets

Food prices in New York City increased slightly during April, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics. Higher fruit and vegetable prices in the city pushed the Bureau's Retail Food Index up to 119.5 from the March level of 119.3. However, the index was still lower than last April's index of 122.1.

Fruit. Although fresh fruit prices have gone up seasonally, many fruits are less expensive than a year ago. McIntosh and Western apples, grapefruit, lemons, California and Florida oranges are lower priced than last year at this time. Fresh peaches from South Carolina and Georgia are appearing in larger numbers in our markets. Bananas, pineapples, and strawberries are plentiful.

Vegetables. Fresh vegetables will be plentiful in the weeks to come. U. S. Department of Agriculture forecasters predict larger crops of celery, sweet corn, lettuce and onions for late spring. In contrast, production of snap beans, cabbage, peppers, and tomatoes will be lower than last year. Nearby vegetables are in larger supply with asparagus and lettuce heading the list.

Other plentiful vegetables include cabbage, celery, beets, onions, peas, eggplant, mushrooms, tomatoes, squash, and potatoes.

Milk. Milk production is approaching the peak period. Supplies will be more plentiful. Suppliers to meet the demand for fluid milk. Milk prices are near their seasonal lows.

Meats. Poultry and meat supplies will be plentiful in June. Receipts of fowl continue heavy and prices are very low. Broiler marketings in June should average 10 per cent greater than a year ago. Pork marketing will also be up from last June by about 10 per cent. Beef production from federally inspected slaughter should be slightly larger than a year ago—possibly by 5 per cent.

Bloomington Home Extension Unit will meet at the Bloomington Firehouse Tuesday, June 9, at 10 a. m. for a final lesson in leather glove making. Mrs. Enrice Formica is instructor.

Good Taste Today

WHEN INVITED TO PLAY CARDS

Dear Mrs. Post: I would like your opinion on a situation we encountered the other evening. My husband and I were invited to the house of friends for an evening of cards. In the middle of our game another couple dropped in. They had not been invited. As six people could not play the game, the hostess suggested that we stop playing entirely. I was very much disappointed. As we had been invited especially to play cards, wasn't it the hosts' obligation to show us first consideration? Shouldn't the friends who just "dropped in" upon seeing us in the midst of a card game have gone on their way? Since they did not do this, would it have been rude for us to have continued playing?

Answer: Your hostess might have said to the unexpected couple, "Oh, I'm so sorry but I have invited the Smiths for an evening of bridge and I can't ask them to stop playing. Would you like to sit and watch the game, and join us in having refreshments later, or would you rather come in tomorrow or some other evening?"

"No Gifts, Please"

Dear Mrs. Post: When wedding anniversary invitations stipulate "No gifts, please," and some of the guests ignore this and take presents anyway, would it be proper for the hostess not to accept them?

Answer: Those who bring gifts in spite of the "No gifts, please" must really want to give something, and their gifts should be accepted with thanks.

Titles Before Return Addresses
Dear Mrs. Post: Is it correct to put a title such as Mr., Mrs., or Miss before one's name on the return address of a envelope? I have been told that you said it is wrong to write one's own name with title prefixing it. Will you tell me if this is correct?

Answer: To prefix one's signature with a title is very bad taste, but to use a title when writing a return address is entirely correct and shows the person receiving the letter how you should be addressed in return.

Mrs. Post offers readers leaflets on a variety of subjects concerning etiquette. If you would like to have her leaflet E-4, entitled, "Wedding Expenses," send 10 cents in coin to Dept. EP, care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y. Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail.

The Mature Parent

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

One Cure for TV-itis: Show a Little Interest

If, while we're reading a magazine, our best friend drops in, we put aside the magazine. We're interested in the heroine's conflict in the magazine story. But we are more interested in our friend.

Unlike the fictional lady, our friend will show some interest in us. She'll not just tell us about her experiences at her husband's business convention, but will listen sympathetically to what happened to us at the important to our friend. So we turn from the fictional character to greet our friend enthusiastically.

Does this clarify anything for a reader who writes, "How do you stop children looking at TV? It's a serious problem in my family. We can't pry our younger boys from the set even at dinner-time."

If we are more interesting to children than the people in cartoons, Westerns and old movies, they will pry themselves away from TV sets just as we reject the magazine heroine for our friend.

Now let's not all go up in smoke. We are sometimes bound to be too preoccupied, too tired to give anything of ourselves to children. We don't feel like inviting their confidences, telling them stories, making a game of setting the table with them. Like the magazine heroine, we're interested only in our own existence.

But under these circumstances, we have to accept the fact that we bore Betty and Stuart, and instead of resenting their absorption in TV, see it as a natural response to our lack of interest in them.

This isn't easy to do. It's much easier to complain of TV's hold on Betty and Stuart than to say to ourselves, "Obviously these youngsters prefer the company of Bugs Bunny and Bette Davis to mine. They prefer sharing experiences with shadows on a screen to sharing them with me. Why?"

Everybody prefers to live himself than to watch other people doing it. Today "experts" give us many complicated psychological reasons for children's absorption in TV, comics, etc.

I think the answer's quite simple. Unreal life has been allowed to become more interesting than the real.

Working Wives Enjoy Having Their Own Money

"Don't think most of us working wives wouldn't quit our jobs tomorrow. We'd spend all our time keeping house if our husbands would promise us a certain amount of spending money to call our own," says one of my women readers.

"But," she goes on, "if we quit working, we would have to account for every cent we spend." She also claims she knows quite a few husbands who say they wish their wives would stop working. But when these husbands start figuring out how the family can get by on one pay check, they never mention giving up any of their own small luxuries. They say the wife can get by with fewer clothes, let the cleaning woman go, won't need lunch money, etc.

"With all the plans for economizing going on one way, a woman figures she's better off holding onto her own pay check," says this reader.

There's truth to what she says. Many women do work because they like to have a little money to call their own. They can spend this on things they want. But this might be impossible to justify if the cost came out of their husband's pay check.

It's also true that a great many men quickly get used to the little luxuries made possible by their wives' pay checks. They don't always offer to give up these luxuries when the talk gets around to whether or not the wife should quit her job.

Undoubtedly, a lot of women go on working year after year so that their husbands can have the extras they have grown accustomed to. Too, the women can have the independence of some money in their handbags.

The traffic toll during the 54-hour period shot far past the old record of 241 for a two-day Memorial Day holiday set in 1953. During the weekend there were 101 drownings and 47 deaths from miscellaneous accidents for an overall total of 458, breaking the 1953 record of 385.

Old Films Will Be Shown During June 6 Reunion

There will be a continuous showing of hundreds of old local scenes and copies of old pictures at the Kate Walton Field House Saturday.

Nine photographers and collectors of old pictures are contributing slides and photographs for this feature of Kingston's "Reunion Day." The afternoon showings will be interspersed with colored films of the 1938, 1939 and 1940 Hudson Valley Apple Blossom Festivals.

The public is invited to the Kate Walton Field House Saturday to see the slides and the exhibits, many items which have never before been available for public inspection. This includes the old gallows, once used for capital punishment in our own Ulster County Court House and a collection of 50 old scenes of the interiors of old Kingston stores, exhibits by Marie and Harry Siemsen of Sawkill.

The photographers and collectors contributing to the vast collection of slides of old local scenes are Helen Aldridge, Frank Carle, Alfred Marquardt, Charlotte McGraw, Thelma Mertens, Charles Sackler, Harry Siemsen, Marie Siemsen and Mary K. Wiseman.

Girl Scout News

The June meeting of the board of directors of the Ulster County Council of Girl Scouts, Inc. at the Governor Clinton Hotel June 1 differed from the usual meetings in that the Neighborhood Service Teams of the 12 neighborhoods were invited guests, and a social hour preceded the business meeting.

Mrs. Jerry Blair, who has served the council for the past year as district director and who is leaving soon to join her husband in Nassau County Council of Boy Scouts, was an honored guest.

Mrs. Eugene Abramsky, program chairman of the council, was in charge of arrangements for the reception held at 7 p. m. honoring Mrs. Blair. A gift of a Girl Scout statuette was presented to Mrs. Blair in appreciation for her successful work with the districts of the Ulster County Council and with the camping committee.

Mrs. Calvin Wygant Sr., president, presided at the business meeting which followed. Mrs. Robert Greene, camping chairman; Mrs. Morris Kirk, troop organization chairman; Mrs. Dorothy Lacey, chairman of a committee on the Ulster County Fair; Mrs. Donovan Buehring, senior planning board adviser; and Robert Greene, finance chairman made reports.

The neighborhood chairmen, who, with their committees, were guests at the board meeting, are:

BETWEEN YOU 'N' ME

It may be heresy, but Jimmy Dykes let slip to an intimate group that the National League has better players . . . and more of them . . . than the American League which he's rejoined as manager of the Detroit Tigers. . . . Also that Willie Mays is the best of the best. . . .

Could it be that the Pirates' George Witt, on the shelf with an ailing arm, has taken so many cortisone injections that the drug doesn't have any effect on the bad flipper? . . .

This is what happens when you're a pitcher struggling to hold on to a job. . . . When he was an 18-game winner, the Milwaukee Braves Bob Buhl wouldn't let Del Crandall catch him. . . . But now that Crandall's solid as the best catcher in the National League, and baseball, he's calling the shots. . . . and Buhl follows orders. . . .

Like those base hits Del gets for him, too. . . .

Paging Ingenieur Johanson. . . . Doesn't an old law on the books of the New York State boxing commission say a foreign challenger must fight at least once in the States before fighting for a title? . . .

Privately, baseball men are agast about the bad deal Bill Veeck made to get back into the majors. . . . Paid just inside $4 million for a little more than half of the Chicago White Sox, inheriting poor real estate. . . . compare that with the $2,850,000 Del Webb, Dan Topping and Larry MacPhail paid for 100 per cent of the New York Yankees, including the valuable Stadium. . . .

To show how Don Newcombe has conquered his erstwhile fear of flying, when the Cincinnati Reds take to the air, he's schmoozing with the pilot. . . .

Rocky Marciano reported in to this department with the news that he's got his golf scores down in the low 90's, his weight stabilized at 214. . . . that Sonny Liston is still a year away, or four, from championship level ("He jabs real good, but he's no fighter, from championship level"). . . . wants to know what's the matter with Cus D'Amato. . . . and notes that "playing golf beats picking potatoes". . . .

Although he has it made, Bob Allison, the rookie center fielder of the Washington Senators, figures on returning to Cuba for winter ball. . . . credits the experience he got there last off-season for landing him on the Nats. . . .

Reason Washington sent Ossie Bluege to scout Harmon Killebrew in Idaho before they handed the Killer a wad of cash to brew in Idaho got a reputation for being so tight they finally had to make him club controller. . . . The Nats had never given a bonus to that point—how were they to know? The Killer would make Bluege's eyes pop with 12 hits in 12 AB's. . . .

Ben Kerner, the St. Louis post basketball impresario, is living it up. . . . investing thousands just to stage a rookie school in June, importing a dozen candidates from coast-to-coast for the trials. . . . and the Hawks with no more than two job openings at most. . . .

How a sports entrepreneur blackjacks a city with major league sports ambitions: the Chicago Cardinals offered Minneapolis two "home" games this fall. . . . but, said owner Walter Wolfner, at a guarantee of $140,000 per game. . . . Minneapolis, fearing loss of prestige, couldn't say no, but hammered the price down to $120,000. . . . and still has lots of troubles. . . . The Cardinals there seats only 20,500. . . . and putting in 5,000 temporary pews would cost them a rental of $3 a seat. . . .

Billy Martin has become the head-shrinker of the Cleveland Indians. . . . prescribed pipe-smoking to settle down high-strung Jimmy Piersall, who can't stand cigars anywhere around him. . . .

Between you 'n' me, would an American League umpire be out of a job if the Indians reported a remark he passed the other day on the field about Piersall? . . .

Parete Drives In Three Runs, Williams Homers

John Parete, Kingston High School's All-DUSO catching candidate, drove home three runs with a homer and single and teammate Charley Williams slammed a long homer as the Maroon diamond team closed its season yesterday at Dietz Stadium with a 4-2 win over Roosevelt, the Dutchess County Scholastic League champions.

Coach Al Guner's nine had a scheduled game Friday against Suffern but the downstate team called it off. KHS finished with a 6-7 record, the first time in the six years of Coach Guner's regime at the school that one of his ball clubs lost more games than it won.

Beadle Wins It Lefty Bob Beadle finished his high school career on a good note as he hurled a nifty three-hitter. Bob won half the victories of the Maroon this season and lost two heartbreakers.

The visitors scored in the first inning after the first two batters had been retired. Dave Sten doubled, Glenn Santmire walked and Beadle uncorked a pair of wild pitches.

Williams got Kingston back in the game in the second when with two outs, he lined a home run up the alley in right center field.

Roosevelt went ahead for the last time in the third on a one out walk to Roger Bowman and hits by Bruce Bahret and Santmire.

John Bruck walked in the bottom of the third, was sacrificed to second by Dave O'Connor and scored on a two out single by Parete.

John Tags One John settled matters in the fifth. With one out, Hobie Armstrong walked and then stole second (naturally). Parete then caught hold of a pitch and hit it on a line to deep left field. Before the horsehide could be retrieved, the catcher was sitting on the bench. It was his third home run of the season, two of which were hit against Newburgh.

Beadle walked two batters and struck out three. His mates kept him out of hot water with several fine defensive plays. Eddie Sadowski went all the way for Roosevelt.

AL Pennant Race Getting Closer As Top Clubs Bow

By ED WILKS

Associated Press Sports Writer

Lightning has just struck twice in the American League pennant chase with Kansas City and Detroit, both up from the depths, jolting the jitters out of front-stumbling Cleveland and Chicago.

The A's and Tigers combined to take 8 of 10 games from the first place Indians and runner-up White Sox over the long holiday weekend.

Kansas City, after winning two of three at Cleveland, completed a two-game sweep at Chicago by beating the White Sox 3-1 Monday night. The Tigers, who had snatched two of three from Chicago, bagged a two-game sweep over the Indians with a 3-1 afternoon victory in the only other AL game.

The Indians now have lost three in a row and five of their last six, but still hold a one-game edge over the White Sox—who have lost two in a row and seven of their last nine for nothing more than a half-game lead over third-place Baltimore.

Kansas City, in seventh place but long ago and seven games behind just a week ago, now is fourth, within 3½ games of the top. The Tigers, last and 9½ games behind only nine days ago, are fifth, 4½ games back.

Southpaw Bud Daley, who has breezed through three consecutive complete games in four starts since quitting his relief role, beat the White Sox a second time in that span with a seven-hitter for a 4-3 record. Joe DeMaestri was the guy with the bat for the A's, tripling home the tying run and scoring the winner on a wild pitch in a two-run fifth. Then he hit his third homer in the seventh inning for the final run.

Third Straight Ray Moore, (1-3) lost it, giving up eight hits as the A's won their third in a row.

Daley, nicknamed for the White Sox run in the fourth when Luis Aparicio doubled and scored on Nellie Fox's single has not given up a walk in his last three games. He has allowed only six runs in 40 innings.

Paul Foytack and Eddie Yost got the job done for the Tigers, who have won seven of eight since slipping into the cellar with a first-game defeat in a May 24 doubleheader with Cleveland.

Foytack (3-6) won his second in a row with a five-hitter. He gave up a run in the second inning, then blanked the Indians the rest of the way on three singles for his first complete game in 11 starts. He didn't walk a man.

Yost Homers Yost, whose top one-season homer total is 12, broke a 1-1 tie with his 10th for the Tigers in the fifth inning. The veteran third baseman also singled for two of the five Detroit hits off loser Gary Bell (4-1).

The Tigers now have won 19 of 27 since Jimmy Dykes replaced Bill Norman as manager a month ago today.

Overfield Hits 543 Bob Overfield rolled 225-543 to lead the Ferraro Junior League. Al Haines shot 217-515, Marty Thomas 512, James Berardi 468, Charles Bellow 486, Mike Kelly 482, Carol Berthoff 460.

Alpine Rallies For 3-2 Victory; Subway Winner

Alpine Tavern of Highland continues to set the pace in the City Softball league. Last night the league leaders used some superb hurling by old pro Hank Passante and two seventh inning hits to beat Katsbaan Inn, 3-2. In another tilt, Subway beat Chez Emile, 5-3.

A double by Sam Williams and John Ruzzo's single gave the Highlanders their victory. The club had knotted the count in the fifth frame at 2-2 after falling behind in the fourth.

Ted Beland had a two base hit for Katsbaan. Lou Hritz was a tough luck loser. He walked three and struck out eight. Slugging Hank had three strikeouts and didn't issue a walk. Brother Eddie had two singles in three trips to the dish.

Subway broke a 3-3 tie with Chez Emile with a two run sixth inning. Both sides had eight safeties. Costello was the winner over Ben Freer, the no-hit chucker.

Bob Scherer led the winners attack with a home run. Costello helped his own cause with two safeties. Glaser tripled for the losers and Crosby had two doubles.

Meany Attacks Ike, Congress for Anti-Labor Bill

NEW YORK (AP) — AFL-CIO President George Meany called Monday for a "declaration of war" by organized labor against what he called discriminatory, anti-labor legislation.

He said the labor movement will not accept the labor bill now before Congress.

If the bill is passed, Meany told a labor group, it will mean that local unions "will be meeting with the shadow of federal law hanging over your head."

"We will not buy this—not this year, next year or any year will I buy legislation that is discriminatory," Meany declared.

He spoke to 2,000 delegates at a convention of the United Hatters, Cap and Millinery Workers International Union.

"Enemies of labor got in and did their work," he said. "And now we have a bill with which we will not cooperate."

"A declaration of war seems to be the answer instead of cooperation," he said. The war will have to be on the political front, he added, and organized labor will have to fight in the "legislative halls."

Meany included the Eisenhower administration and Congress in his criticism.

"Labor," he said, "is under attack from the employer and from the government." He accused the administration of pressuring against wage increases, on the theory that higher wages will cause inflation.

Saugerties-Glasco CAP Squadron Sets Dance June 6

The first social function of the newly formed Saugerties-Glasco Composite Squadron, Civil Air Patrol, will be a dance Saturday, 8 p. m. at Saugerties Municipal Auditorium.

The event will start a fund raising campaign and introduce the new squadron to the public. The Blue Notes will provide music for dancing. Refreshments will be available in the firehouse. Tickets may be purchased at the door.

The local CAP hopes to raise enough money to start the purchase of radio receivers in order to operate in conjunction with other squadrons in air rescue and major disaster when necessary.

A spokesman for the group said several people have been contacted regarding the establishment of a local air strip. The matter is still under study.

Five Are Killed In Mine Blast

IRON RIVER, Mich. (AP) — Sorrow burdened this northern Michigan mining community today in the wake of Monday's underground "belching hell" disaster that killed five men.

Thanks was also given that the tragedy was no worse. Survivors' accounts of the peril deep within the Inland Steel Co. Sherwood iron mine in nearby Mineral Hills indicated that but for warnings, including the telltale odor of gas, the death toll might have been far greater.

The five who died were trapped by sulphurous gas and flames that shot out from the collapse of a walled-up excavation room.

Seven others were injured while 25, some crawling in pitch-black darkness up a 225-foot incline 1,200 feet below the surface, escaped without injury.

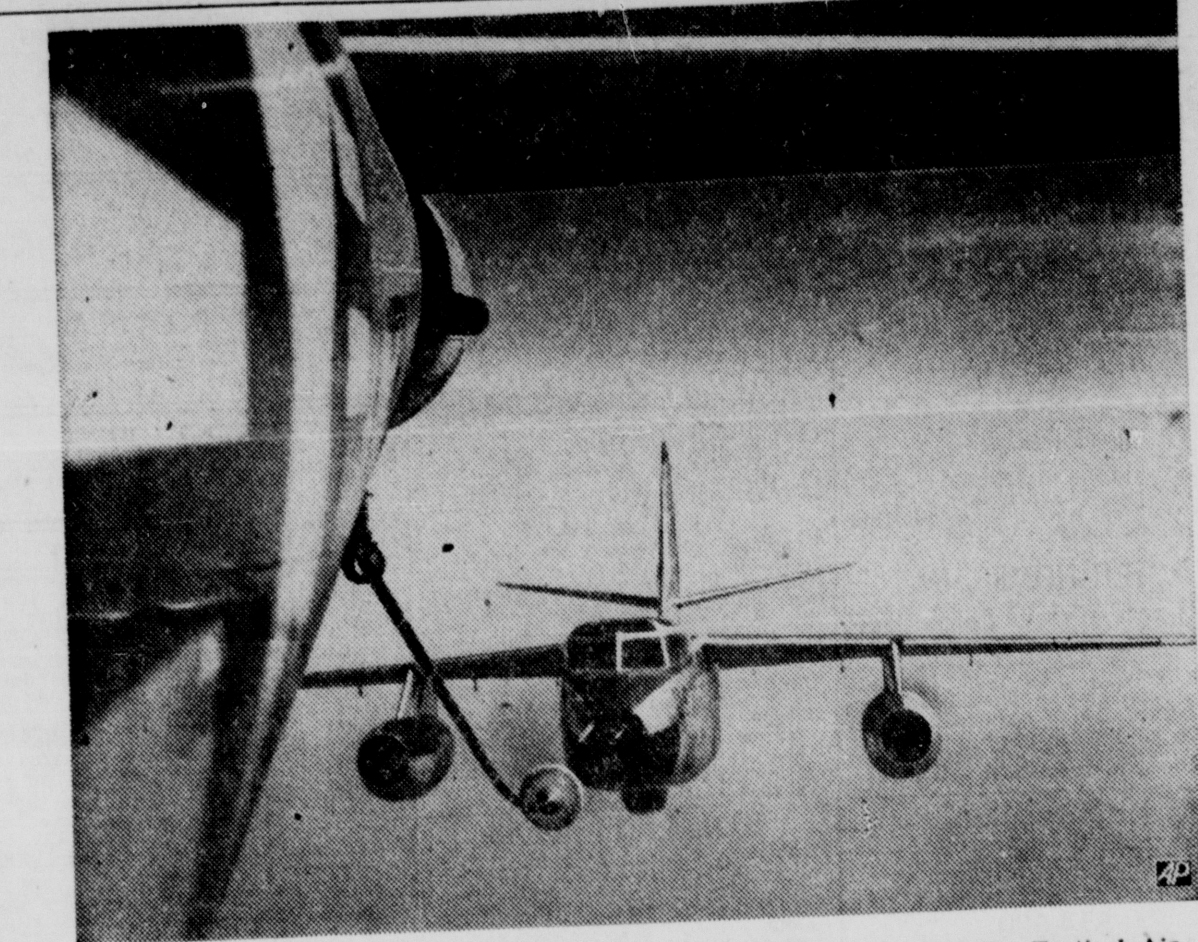

Howard Group, 30, Crystal Falls, whose father Everett escaped, died in a hospital at nearby Stambaugh Monday night. Gas fumes had seared his lungs.

The other four victims, all veterans of the iron mines, were Ingvar Wester, about 48, Iron River; August Zuckel, 51, Caspian; Einar Johnson, 59, Crystal Falls, and Carl Anderson, 40, Iron River.

All were residents of the cluster of mining towns in Michigan's Upper Peninsula.

Says Dog Disappeared

Police were notified yesterday that a pet beagle hound owned by Mr. and Mrs. John M. Fleming, of 127 Chambers Street, disappeared from the rear yard while they were away last weekend. The dog, named Zeb, was tied in the yard Saturday when it was fed at noon, and when the Flemings returned home they discovered the dog was gone. Mrs. Fleming said it is not known where the beagle was stolen, or whether it strayed away and became lost.

Stephen de Lisio Graduates With Honors From Emory

Stephen S. de Lisio, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony J. de Lisio of Woodstock, will be graduated with honors from Emory University in Atlanta, Ga., on Friday of this week.

de Lisio will receive a Bachelor of Arts degree, with a major in the field of Political Science. In connection with the major, he was chosen to represent Emory in the Washington Semester program at the American University in Washington, D. C. The program is directed at a semester and was directed at the study of our federal government and foreign relations.

During the course, de Lisio wrote a thesis on the factors influencing United States recognition of Communist China. He completed the course with four A's and B's.

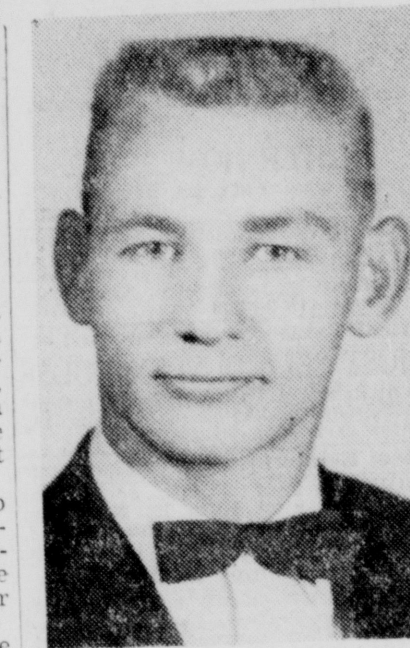

Upon returning to Emory, he was elected to the Alpha Epsilon chapter of Pi Sigma Alpha, the national political science honor society.

While at Emory, de Lisio was a member of the Chi Phi social fraternity, holding several offices. He sang in the widely recognized Emory Glee Club for two years and served as judge for two years on the Emory University Traffic Court. He was also instrumental in organizing what is now Emory's varsity soccer squad.

de Lisio was also active in several other phases of athletics, including football, soccer, swimming, wrestling, volleyball and softball.

Active in Politics
Active in campus politics, de Lisio started a movement to establish different parties in campus politics. This effort should bear fruit in the campus elections next year. Upon his return from American U., he lectured extensively on the program to political science classes at Emory.

de Lisio plans to study law and has been accepted by the Georgetown Law Center at Washington, D. C. and Albany Law School, but is expected to attend the Albany school. He was a pupil at Woodstock Elementary School and was graduated from Blair Academy in New Jersey before entering Emory. His sister, Sharon de Lisio, has just completed her freshman year at Rosemont College in Pennsylvania.

And he did so; and his hand was restored whole as the other' (Luke 6:10)."

The Church - The Body Of Christ Is Topic For Wilder Sermons

The church — The Body of Christ — is the topic of the sermon to be preached in the churches of the Woodstock Methodist Parish on Sunday, June 7, by the Rev. Garnett M. Wilder. We have often heard reference to the church as the "body of Christ," while having only a vague idea of what may have been meant by the phrase, the Rev. Wilder points out. This sermon has more purpose than simply to help guide us to a better understanding of the phrase. This serves as a challenge to fulfill our proper function as church members. We invite you to worship with us this Sunday.

Meeting Notices
Announcement is made of the forthcoming election of trustees for the Woodstock Methodist Church to fill the unexpired terms of Richard Kellar and Stewart Strickland. The election will be held on June 14 during the morning worship hour.

The Woodstock W.S.C.S. will meet on Thursday, June 4, at 1:30 p. m. at the church.

The Great Expectations feature always a highlight of the annual Woodstock Library Fair, was kicked off on Memorial Day with a brisk advance sale of tickets in front of the News Shop between the hours of 9 a. m. and 3 p. m.

The three grand prizes in the event this year will include a $1,000 U. S. Savings Bond, a Hi-Fi Stereophonic record player, and an All-Transistor radio. In addition, there will be dozens of other fabulous prizes of varying value.

The Great Expectations committee, which includes Mrs. Gordon Andersen, advisory chairman, Mrs. William Popplewell, Mrs. Irving Kalish, Mrs. Irwin Alt, and Mr. Edward Van Westorff, offered the Memorial Day advance sale to afford the public an early opportunity to purchase tickets for this ever-popular drawing.
